Council Talks of City Horses With Trained Walk

Alderman O'Reilly Believes Street Force Horses Travel Leisurely and Suggests Jiffy Trucks in Their Stead—Sympathy for Mayor Block —Other Matters Before Common Council.

Is it a fact that the horses employed on the street department of the city are trained to travel leisurely? Alderman O'Reilly believes so and Tuesday evening at the common council session introduced a resolution suggesting that the board of public works consider the matter of substituting jiffy auto trucks for horse drawn vehicles. The resolution was referred to tee board of public works, but not until several of the aldermen freed their minds on the subject.

"The board of public works wants two snow loaders," said Alderman O'Reilly after his resolution was read by the city clerk, "but none of you aldermen who voted in favor of the ordinance knows whether they can secure enough trucks to keep the loaders busy. Last winter they did not have enough trucks to keep one loader busy, let alone two loaders. Now if they install some jiffy trucks at an expenditure of about $2,400 they will be doing something. As it is, we are fifty years behind the times with horse drawn vehicles.

"Take the man who flushes out the city sewers, for instance," said Alderman O'Reilly. "He gets a call to flush a sewer in Wilbur and drives there in his horse and wagon. When he gets it cleaned he is called to Albany avenue and it takes him all day to get there."

"They Do the Charleston."

"Today they were busy taking up the leaves in the street in front of my house," said Alderman Moore. "They had one elderly man driving the horse and wagon and three young boys. One of the boys was doing the Charleston. They were also discussing everything under the sun except the common council; I did not hear them discuss us. It took them just half a day to clean up the leaves for a distance of half a block. They left about noon with a load of leaves and had not come back this afternoon. Maybe they drove out the Saugerties road.

"Honestly, I believe the horses are trained to walk slow. There is one man employed on the street force who always waters his horse in Wilbur at 4 o'clock in the afternoon when quitting time arrives. In order to get to the watering trough there at 4 o'clock he knocks off work at 2 o'clock so his horse can walk to the trough by 4 o'clock."

"Don't Need Pierce Arrows."

"That's what I say," said Alderman O'Reilly. "What they need is some jiffy trucks at an expenditure of about $2,400. They don't need Pierce Arrows; Ford trucks will do the work. You all know who have watched the street department horses that they only go so fast. Maybe it's the climate—I don't know."

"Perhaps the trucks would be trained to run slow," suggested Alderman Haines, turning to Alderman O'Reilly.

"Not Fords," replied Alderman O'Reilly.

Fox Defends Men.

"Do you know what these men get you are talking about?" asked Alderman Fox somewhat warmly as he arose to his feet.

"$3.50 a day," replied Alderman O'Reilly.

"They were," replied Alderman Fox, "but they have been cut twenty-five cents a day. How much do you want a man to do for $3.25 a day; can you live on that amount?"

"If they only get twenty-five cents a day," said Alderman O'Reilly, "they ought to earn it. They are getting paid now for more work than they do."

"It doesn't seem to me that we are here to discuss how much work the men have to do," said Alderman Moore, which brought the discussion to a close.

Alderman Sharkey.

Alderman Sharkey, of the Twelfth ward, who has been unable to attend council meetings for some time owing to illness, has so far recovered that he was able to attend Tuesday's session and he was warmly welcomed by his brother aldermen.

Sympathy for Mayor.

Alderman Everett introduced a resolution expressing the council's sympathy to Mayor Morris Block who is undergoing treatment at a hospital in New York city, which was unanimously adopted, and a copy of the resolution will be forwarded to the mayor.

To Sell Gym Equipment.

Alderman Everett submitted a report favoring the request of the board of police commissioners that it sell the gymnasium equipment to the highest bidder and place the money received in the police pension fund. The report was adopted.

Alderman Moore asked Alderman Everett if he would add to the report the suggestion that the police board before selling the equipment offer it to the fire department, but Alderman Everett declined.

Progress on Charter.

"Have you had any word from the corporation counsel regarding the city charter?" asked Alderman O'Reilly of

Smith Renews Attack on Hearst

Charging That Slang Concerning "Al and Cow" Comes From Watson—Suggests Mills Read Smith Campaign Speeches.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—Governor Smith believes that the "shortest and quickest" way for his Republican opponent for gubernatorial honors, Ogden L. Mills, to learn about the business of the state of New York, is for him to read the Smith campaign speeches.

The governor made this declaration last night during his speech here from the same platform on which he was nominated, three weeks ago, for the fifth time as Democratic candidate for governor. He made the suggestion identical to a discussion of the business policies of his administration.

The governor renewed his attack on William Randolph Hearst, whom he charged last week with being allied with the Republican party in the Mills campaign.

"The Mills campaign is the typical Hearst tirade," the governor asserted. "It is under the auspices of and is being engineered by Hearst's man Watson. (J. E. Watson, a former publisher of the Hearst paper in Syracuse.)

"Watson travels on the train with him. He prepares the statements for him. It is a campaign such as Hearst always wages—misrepresentation, lying, vilifying, repeating the lie day in and day out with the hope of driving it into the mind of somebody.

Hearst Language.

"Take some of the statements that are supposed to have come from Mr. Mills. The slang about 'Al is afraid to look a cow in the eye', and 'if they met a milk train,' the Smith car would jump the track'. That is not Ogden Mills That does not sound like the language of a cultured son of an old and aristocratic family, a graduate of Harvard University. Why, that is Hearst's language. That language is prepared for him by the Hearst man who travels with him on the train."

Laughter and applause greeted the governor's reference to Mr. Mills's statements about "padded payrolls" in connection with the state's grain elevators at Oswego and Gowanus.

"His silly piffle about padded payrolls," asserted the governor, "has been answered by the superintendent of the grain elevators, a member of his own party. Not only has it been answered, but the congressman has been challenged to make good his statements and he has been unable to do it.

Keep Tabs on Opponents.

"Our stenographer with the Mills party has become so tired of taking down the story about 'padded payrolls' that he is just putting down 'insert old bunk about payrolls.'"

This was the first reference in the campaign to the new practice of both parties of having stenographers with the opposition candidates As Governor Smith was uttering the words, the stenographer from the Mills party was below the platform copying down the speech verbatim.

Misrepresented, Says Wagner.

Justice Robert T. Wagner, Democratic candidate for United States senator, speaking with Governor Smith last night, reiterated his opposition to the creation of a federal department of education, and asserted his position had been misrepresented by Senator James W Wadsworth, Jr., his Republican opponent.

"I am not now, and never have been," said Judge Wagner, "in favor of creation of any federal department, which would in the slightest degree interfere with the control and direction by the state of education of its own children, and of the right of the parents to direct the nature and kind of education their children shall receive.

"PEACHES" HAS BUT ONE GUARDIAN NOW

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP)—Frances "Peaches" Browning, 16-year-old wife of Edward W. Browning, wealthy New York real estate man, has had the guardians of her legal interests reduced from two to one.

Her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Heenan, was appointed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Morschauser in place of N. Otis Rockwood, an attorney named Saturday on the plea of her 52-year-old husband that the mother was unfit.

Attorneys for "Peaches" had her mother appointed guardian Monday by a New York court.

After hearing yesterday's application for the removal of Rockwood and substitution of Mrs. Heenan, the court said:

"I see no reason why the infant defendant's application should not be granted. I am satisfied that her interests will be protected by the change."

COLORED CHURCH DOES NOT WANT KLAN MONEY

A delegation from the Ebenezer Baptist Church, colored, of North Water street, Newburgh, called at police headquarters in that city last Monday and presented Chief Brown with an envelope containing $23.20 which had been donated to the church apparently by the Ku Klux Klan. Chief Brown was asked to locate the parties who donated the money and return it to them as the church, although it was in need of help, did not care to accept finances from that source.

Has City Power To Adopt Salary Increase Laws?

Communication From Corporation Counsel to Common Council Causes it to Pause and Consider —Public Hearing on Bill Increasing Judge's Salary Next Tuesday Evening.

Whether the common council has the power to adopt local laws increasing the salaries of city officials during the term they hold office was the question raised at the common council meeting Tuesday evening after the board listened to a communication from Corporation Counsel James Jenkins read by City Clerk Styles, which was referred to the committee on laws and rules.

The communication from the corporation counsel read as follows: "Increasing or decreasing fees. etc. of public officers during the term of which said officers are elected or appointed:

"The state constitution in reference to above is as follows:

"The Legislature shall not pass a private or local bill in any of the following cases: * * * Creating, increasing or decreasing fees, percentages or allowances of public officers during the term for which said officers are elected or appointed."

Constitution of State of New York, Article III, section 18, paragraph XI.

"The Court of Appeals has held that the above provision did not apply to policemen of city of Brooklyn who were receiving salaries at rate of $1,100 per annum which the common council of the city of Brooklyn reduced to $1,000 per annum Mangan vs Brooklyn 98 N. Y. 585."

Public Hearing Tuesday.

The communication from Judge Jenkins raised the question in the minds of the aldermen whether they had the legal power to adopt Local Law No. 4, which increases the salary of the city judge from $2,000 to $3,000 per year

City Clerk Styles called the attention of the council to the fact that a public hearing on Local Law No. 4 would be held next Tuesday evening at the city hall

"That means, I take it," said one of the aldermen, "that it is unconstitutional to adopt local laws increasing salaries to officials now holding office."

President Dempsey said he believed the question of whether the several local laws calling for increases in salary now before the council were legal or not should be decided before any further action was taken on them and for that reason he would refer the communication to the laws and rules committee to investigate and submit a report.

Other matters taken up at the session will be found elsewhere.

Palen's Sons Get Theatre Contract

Local Concern Will Furnish All Millwork for New Broadway Theatre In This City.

H. W. Palen's Sons have been given the contract for furnishing all the sash, trim, doors, stairs, and other millwork required in the construction of The New Broadway Theatre.

This firm has furnished interior trim for a large number of theatres and state that the new theatre will compare favorably with the best theatres in any of the large cities of the country.

This work going to a local concern will be generally appreciated for not only does it give that much more local labor employment but the money spent for this important portion of the theatre building remains in Kingston.

Three Inches of Snow at Ithaca

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—Jersey Hill, an elevated section five miles south of Ithaca, reported three inches of snow at 9 o'clock this morning. Snow also fell in the city intermittently throughout the morning but not to any such extent as reported in the rural districts.

Corning, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—The city was blanketed under a one inch film of snow this morning, giving real indications of mid-winter weather. It was the first substantial snow of the season and comes much earlier than the first fall of last year. In the streets the snow melted but it remained on houses and cars.

First Snowfall at Hornell.

Hornell, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—Hornell and vicinity experienced its first snow storm of the season today. This morning found the ground covered with a light blanket of snow, and it continued to fall during most of the forenoon.

W. C. T. U. to Meet Thursday.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. was not held today as announced in The Freeman on Tuesday evening but will be held Thursday, October 21, in the parlor of St James M. E. Church at 2:30 p. m. The dues for the coming year will be due. A large attendance will be helpful to the cause.

Big Band Concert Thursday Night

The big Community Sale of the downtown merchants to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday, will be accompanied by a band concert at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening at the corner of the Strand and Broadway. The stores will not be open this evening, but all of the windows will be lighted so that many of the bargains to be offered at the three days' sale may be seen.

This is the first concerted effort of the downtown business men to hold a community sale and over fifty merchants of that section of the city are uniting in making it one of the biggest sales events in the history of the city

All the stores are making special window displays which will be well worth viewing this evening by the thrifty housewife seeking genuine bargains.

During the three days of the sale this week all of the stores will be open evenings.

The concert was to have been held tonight but has been postponed on account of the rain

Beware of Fake Meter Inspectors

The public is cautioned against allowing impostors to gain admittance to their premises by representing themselves as Gas or Electric Inspectors

All genuine inspectors are furnished with a badge properly numbered on which the company's name is embossed.

If you are not fully convinced that the party who seeks admission to your premises is a company inspector, even though he may be provided with a badge, do not admit him before telephoning the nearest office for proper identification

P.-T. A. NO. 4 TO HOLD FATHER'S NIGHT

The October meeting of the No 4 P-T. A. was held on Tuesday afternoon. It was decided to pay for a new basketball for the boys and four new batteries for the extra telephone, also to furnish new glasses in place of the cracked ones, covering seven valuable pictures, to buy new mats and have the frames restained of several pictures hanging in various rooms of the school

It was voted to hold the November meeting on the evening of Friday, November 19, calling it "Father's Night," issuing a special invitation to the fathers of the district, arranging a program by the school children for their entertainment and serving refreshments.

At the close of the business session an interesting program was rendered by three pupils consisting of two numbers by Campbell Staples, played on the trap drums with bass drum foot attachment, and several percussion instruments, accompanied by the school victrola, a piano solo by Ruth Nickerson and a humorous reading impersonating a girl and her chum at the movies by Georg Kent.

INTERSTATE COACH CO. DISCONTINUES SERVICE

The Kingston New York Interstate Coach Company, Roy Masten, proprietor, which has been operating a bus service from the Eagle Hotel to the Alamac Hotel in New York city during the summer, has discontinued the service. The last trip was made Sunday and at the terminal uptown it was stated the service had been discontinued for the season.

FIRE IN U. & D. FLAG SHANTY TUESDAY NIGHT

Fire of unknown origin broke out in a small closet in the flag shanty of the Ulster & Delaware railroad at East Chester street crossing at 9:35 o'clock Tuesday evening and the closet and its contents were considerably damaged before the fire was extinguished by the fire department. Thomas Harmon is flagman at the crossing but was off duty at 7 o'clock.

Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary Rummage Sale.

The women of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary are now carrying on a rummage sale for the benefit of the Auxiliary funds, at the building, corner of Greenkill avenue and Broadway. The sale will continue all of this week, and persons having any articles to contribute are asked to send or take them just as soon as possible to the above address as more articles for sale are needed.

Bible Class Will Vote "No."

The Men's Bible class of the First Baptist Church at a meeting held Tuesday, October 19, were unanimously opposed to the opening of motion picture houses on Sunday, and by a unanimous vote advocated voting "No" on the question "Should the United States modify the federal act to enforce the 18th Amendment."

Who Wants Geraniums?

Tomorrow afternoon between 2 and 4 o'clock there will be members of The Ulster Garden Club at Academy Park to give away any of the geranium plants in the park to persons who may like to have them for indoor growing this winter

Approve Plan for Merger of Local Electric Systems

Directors of Central Hudson System of Gas and Electric Companies Vote for Consolidation of Existing Companies and Their Subsidiaries, Under One Corporate and Operating Unit.

Consolidation of the various units which comprise the Central Hudson System of gas and electric companies into a single company is contemplated in a plan, the details of which have been mailed to the stockholders as a result of action taken by the board of directors at the last meeting, held October 16.

Under this plan, Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company which represents the merging by previous consolidations of numerous units in the system, and United Hudson Electric Corporation, with its subsidiaries, all of which are under one management and practically the same ownership, will become one corporation.

These companies now form a single operating unit and, in effect, the communities in the region are already being served by this one unit The proposed consolidation will make this a corporate as well as an operating unit

To give effect to the plan, the stockholders of the two principal companies will deposit their shares with a despository and when a sufficient number of shares have been deposited to indicate the practical unanimity of stockholders, the necessary legal steps to consummate the plan will follow

According to Central Hudson officials, most of the stockholders are residents of the valley and it is expected that there will be little delay in putting the plan into effect During the interim the committee which is composed of T R. Beal, John L Wilkie and P A. Burnes, will act for the stockholders under an agreement, and will take the necsary legal steps to carry out the plan.

Beal Explains Benefits.

T. R Beal, president of the various companies included in the proposed consolidation, in announcing the plan, said.

"The consolidation of the various units in the Central Hudson System into a single company, we believe, is a necessary step in the development of a utility system to serve the needs of the Central Hudson valley, not merely for the operating efficiencies which will result and which, in themselves, are sufficient to justify the plan, but for the opportunity it will afford for us better to serve the communities in the area.

"The unification of gas and electric facilities which has been going on for many years and which has resulted in bringing many independently owned and operated plants into one system, has demonstrated the economic soundness of the principle. The fact that scores of communities, large and small, now enjoy uniform electric service, that industries are being provided with large quantities of power which no single plant could well supply, and that thousands of local investors are enabled to participate in the undertaking, are among some of the benefits that have accrued. But for these developments it would have been quite impossible to keep rates down to pre-war levels and less in the face of rising costs.

"Our customers will recall that many rate reductions and improved forms of rate have been introduced in recent years and these have been of great benefit to customers During the past month and shortly after the Beacon properties became a part of the system, to cite a recent case, rates were voluntarily reduced in that district.

Consolidation Increases Efficiency.

"Corporate consolidation after the practical unification of physical properties from an operating standpoint, has been the practice of the present management throughout the 25 years in which the Central Hudson System has been developed. The present consolidation adheres to this principle, and is a further step for increased efficiency. It is confidently expected that electric service will continue to be of increasing importance in the valley, and that the economies made possible by this consolidation will result in decreased rates.

"This proposed consolidation merely will make legally effective a situation which has long existed in fact. The stock of both companies are largely owned by the same people, ninety per cent of whom are customers of the companies, residents of the territory served. The directors and officers have for many years been the same. The company policies have led to the closest cooperation, to the great advantage of each, but with the disadvantage of seven separate corporate organizations, with independent rights and duties, separate books and records, separate reports to various public bodies, etc., which, now that their business has grown so large, is a wasteful burden and an increasing expense Several years ago the public service commission recommended the merger of certain of these companies, but at the time, under the war and post-war conditions, it seemed inexpedient to carry out the suggestion. Now, with the companies in their present physical and financial position, with a larger future confronting them, would seem

Mills Assails Water Power Plan

Of Governor Smith and Declares in Favor of Development by Private Enterprise — Wadsworth Makes Clear His Stand.

Rochester, Oct 20 (AP)—The Republican standard bearers, Ogden L Mills, candidate for governor, and James W Wadsworth, Jr, candidate for re-election to the United States Senate, after addressing a joint meeting here last night, today carried their campaigns by different routes through the rural sections of Monroe county to meet again tonight at a mass meeting in Syracuse

Congressman Mills, in addressing an audience that filled Convention Hall, assailed the plan of Governor Alfred E Smith for state development of water power and declared in favor of the development of public utilities by private enterprise under government regulations

Not Straddling, Says Wadsworth.

Senator Wadsworth asked for the return of a Republican majority to congress to carry on the principles of the administration of President Coolidge He also took up the prohibition question and denied charges by Justice Robert F Wagner his Democratic opponent, that he had been "straddling" the prohibition issue

The senator declared he not only had proposed modification of the Volstead act three years ago, but had made public his belief that the insertion of the 18th Amendment in the Constitution was a "fundamental error"

Education Preferable to Force.

He urged the substitution of government regulation with the additional help of the home, the schools and the church in teaching the younger generation the benefits of temperance "This," he declared, "will go much further in preserving respect for the Constitution of the United States than the present system of attempting to create total abstinence by force"

Gibes for Smith.

Representative Mills brought the crowd to its feet with his gibes at Governor Smith Commenting on the governor's speech in Rochester the previous night he declared he thought the governor had stopped to fight but found he had "only stopped to get his breath"

"The retreat from Moscow," he said, "is still on"

Sweeney Had a Fighting Jag

It Cost Him $28 in Police Court for Kicking a Window Out of Police Car and Tearing Buttons off Officer Welch's Uniform—Gardiner Jailed.

James Sweeney, a young iron worker residing on Smith avenue, had a regular fighting jag with him Tuesday evening, and when placed under arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct he kicked out one of the windows of the Franklin car of the police department and tore the buttons off the uniform of Policeman James E. Welch.

The police department received a call from Smith avenue and Officers Ray Van Buren and Welch were sent there in the police car. After a considerable tussle they placed Sweeney under arrest and he spent the remainder of the night in the county jail.

This morning Judge Shufeldt in police court fined him $28, which he paid.

Abraham Gardiner was arrested on North Front street Tuesday by Officer Hess, who charged him with public intoxication and panhandling Gardiner had entered a lunch room and informed the chef that his mother-in-law had died and he was hungry. The chef advised Gardiner "to take the air." He did This morning Judge Shufeldt sentenced him to ten days in jail.

Grand Jury May Report Thursday

The grand jury is expected to complete its investigations this afternoon and report to Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck in supreme court at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The last grand jury in September disposed of practically all of the jail cases and the present grand jury will probably hand up but few open indictments with its report. There were several cases, however, to be investigated and probably there will be several sealed bills handed up.

DE LA VERGNE OPENS LAW OFFICES HERE

Charles De La Vergne, formerly with the law firm of Bigham, Englar & Jones of No 84 Wall street, New York city, announces that he has opened offices for the general practice of law in the Ulster County Savings Bank building, at No. 280 Wall street, Kingston.

St. John's Church Service.

There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion for St. John's Church, Thursday morning, October 21 During erection of the new church, services are being held in the temporary chapel, corner of Albany and Tremper avenues.

Will Issue Bonds To Purchase New Snow Equipment

Common Council After Considerable Discussion Adopts Ordinance for $9,000 Bond Issue to Pay for Snow Loader, Ten-Ton Tractor and Snow Plow.

The board of public works in a communication to the common council Tuesday evening called attention to the fact that last winter it found its snow removal equipment inadequate, and asked the council to authorize a bond issue for $9,000 to pay for new snow removal equipment The new equipment, the board wrote, would consist of a snow loader, a ten-ton tractor and a snow plow, to cost $13,400 Of that amount $4 400 would be placed in the 1927 budget, and the remaining $9,000 in a bond issue

An ordinance authorizing the bond issue was read by City Clerk A A. Styles and was followed by a discussion of the snow removal problem

Can't Keep One Loader Busy.

Alderman O Reilly said he would like to know if the board of public works would be able to obtain enough rigs and trucks to keep two snow loaders busy He said that last winter the board used but one snow loader and could not keep that busy.

Alderman Clare said he believed it a good plan for the board of public works to purchase another snow loader so that both ends of the city could be cleaned up.

O'Reilly Chastens Clare.

"You don't know what you are talking about," interrupted Alderman O Reilly, turning to Alderman Clare, who replied that he did not think that was the exactly formal way for one alderman to address another

"What assurance is there that they can get enough trucks to keep two loaders busy?" said Alderman O Reilly

Alderman Clare insisted that two loaders were necessary.

"Think so?" retorted Alderman O'Reilly "Then you believe in having $5 000 worth of machinery lying idle part of the time as well as a number of men by not having trucks enough to cart the snow away from one snow loader."

President E J. Dempsey, acting mayor of the city in the absence of Mayor Morris Block, interrupted the discussion between Alderman O'Reilly and Clare to state that he had attended the meeting of the board of public works Monday evening at which time the board had worked out a plan where both snow loaders could be used to advantage

Believes Tractor Is Needed.

Alderman Moore said he believed that the board instead of buying another loader should get another tractor. "I believe it more essential to keep the streets open." He also said he believed with Alderman O Reilly that the ordinance should be referred to the finance ways and means committee "I don't know who is on that committee," he said, "but I know that they may be able to give us some good ideas"

Alderman Haines said he agreed with Aldermen O'Reilly and Moore, and that the side streets were not opened as quickly as possible last winter.

One Tractor Will Do Work.

Alderman Everett said that one tractor could open all the streets in four days. "I believe with these gentlemen," he said, "that we should know more about it, but if we should be caught with a heavy snow storm with the matter still in the hands of a committee it would not look good for the common council. I think it ought to go through tonight."

"Council Jarred Them."

"It was the common council who jarred their memory about a tractor," said Alderman Fox "We called the board's attention to the need of a heavy tractor last year. What we want is the streets opened, not the snow removed."

"It's Up To Board."

Alderman Moore said he did not agree with Alderman Everett's statement that the council would be responsible in case of a snow storm. "If there comes a storm between now and our next meeting it would not be the fault of the common council, but the board of public works."

"I am not condoning the board of public works," replied Alderman Everett, "my position is that we are choosing the lesser of the two evils."

Mann Ends Discussion.

"Since we put it in the minds of the board of public works to buy snow equipment," said Alderman Mann, "I move that we adopt this ordinance."

His motion was promptly seconded and put to a vote, resulting in its adoption by a vote of 9 to 4. Those voting against adoption were Aldermen Haines, Moore, Fox and O'Reilly.

Those voting in favor of the ordinance were Aldermen DeGarmo, Molyneaux, Mann, Radel, Clare, Noice, Everett, Sharkey, and Flannery.

DIGS UP PUEBLO LOST CENTURIES

Ethnologist Makes Discovery of Mound of Arizona Forest.

Washington.—The spade of the archeologist has brought to light from among the pine trees near Flagstaff, Ariz., beautifully environed Elden pueblo, the walls of which have been hidden for centuries under low mounds of stone and earth. This name was selected by Doctor Fewkes because of its proximity to Elden mountain.

From the cemetery of Elden pueblo, Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, chief of the bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian institution, has recovered a remarkable collection of prehistoric pottery. It includes 300 perfect vessels, and fragments which can be repaired of as many more.

The pottery includes cooking utensils, seed jars, dippers, ladles, food bowls and some very unusual animal effigies. The most striking effigy figure the Hopi identified as representing an antelope. This elaborately decorated effigy bowl found with a skeleton would indicate that the burial was that of a priest and that the bowl was a sacred one.

Was an Ancient Metropolis.

The pueblo whose inhabitants made this pottery was a metropolis of the Southwest centuries before the coming of the white man. When Doctor Fewkes undertook its excavation last May the site gave little promise of a buried building, but as the result of a summer's work it now stands out as a rectangular enclosure measuring 145 by 125 feet and containing 40 or more chambers. In its original state it rose two stories, but the roofs and floors of the upper stories have long since fallen in and the highest section of the wall still standing measures only eight feet from the base.

The outer wall is solid, without windows or doors. To enter his house the Elden pueblo dweller had to climb the wall by ladders and through a hatchway descend to the lower story. These blank outer walls were undoubtedly a protective arrangement to keep out enemies and when besieged defended themselves from the roofs with rude weapons.

The pueblo contains one large room about thirty-two feet square, with rounded corners. A raised banquette on the inner wall was probably designed for seats. There is a fireplace in the center and on one side a ventilator for supplying fresh air. This was undoubtedly the ceremonial room of the pueblo.

Home of Hopi Ancestors.

What people were they who built and lived in this metropolis so many centuries ago? The masonry is very crude and indicates the early stages of pueblo building. The pottery is predominantly white with black geometric designs in the interior—a form typical of the old Hopi. There still exist vague legends among the Hopi Indians indicating that Elden pueblo was one of the homes of their ancestors. It is probable, therefore, that the pueblo was built by one of the groups or ancestral clans of the modern composite Hopi Indians.

When the pueblo was inhabited or why abandoned—whether because enemies stole the crops or because the water supply gave out or for some other reason—are facts which can only be roughly conjectured.

Doctor Fewkes reinforced the adobe used as concrete by the builders with cement and took all other possible steps to protect the pueblo walls in withstanding the ravages of the elements, in order that they may continue to reveal something of the life of prehistoric Americans to the modern tourist.

Iodine from Seaweeds Is Best Remedy for Goiter

Philadelphia.—Iodine from seaweeds as a preventive of high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries was outlined today before the American Chemical society convention.

Dr. J. W. Turrentine of the bureau of soils, United States Department of Agriculture, speaking before the division of the chemistry of medicinal products, said studies in the government laboratories show that the excess weight of advancing years may frequently be attributed to an inactive thyroid gland, indicating an inadequate supply of iodine in the human system.

The activity of iodine naturally occurring in seaweed was shown to be some 200 times greater than that of the iodines frequently used in the treatment and prevention of goiter, he said.

By activity, he explained, was meant the power of the iodine to increase or restore the normal functioning of the thyroid gland. The abnormal functioning of that gland results in goiter, he said.

School Teaches Fathers How to Care for Tots

Bristol, Eng.—A school has been opened here where fathers can learn how to take care of the children while their modern wives are out at the movies or elsewhere.

The lectures, held nightly under the auspices of the National League of Health, Maternity and Child Welfare, are well patronized. The lecturers are good looking nurses and smoking is permitted.

JAPAN SLOW IN WINNING BACK ECONOMIC SOLIDITY

American Survey of Conditions Pictures the Island Empire in Bad Way.

Washington.—Although Japan took less of an active part in the late war than any other participant, it has been the slowest to recover and has not yet won back its economic solidity. This fact has been ascertained by a comprehensive survey of the Japanese situation by the Mercantile Trust company of California, one of the largest banks west of the Rocky mountains.

Japan had two hard blows after the armistice—its industry and business suffered a depression of severe intensity, and then came the earthquake, which destroyed a vast amount of property and stifled trade for the time being.

Although 80,000,000 people live in Japan the territory occupied is smaller than the state of Texas. Including Korea, Formosa and Sakhalin, the Japanese empire has only 245,000 square miles. Mountains occupy 75 per cent of the area of Japan proper. Only 15 per cent of the mainland is arable. The 60,000,000 people dwelling on the mainland must get their food from a cultivable soil about half the size of Iowa.

Japan's population is divided about half and half between city and rural subjects. Six cities in the empire have a population of more than 400,000. The average size of a farm in Japan is two acres. There are two great cities, Tokyo and Osaka, each of which has a population of more than 2,000,000.

Perhaps it is because the empire has grown too fast, has come too rapidly into the family of civilized nations. But from whatever reason, it is apparent the empire is in a bad way.

For one thing, Japan has not the backbone of wealth the occidental nations have. The last figures compiled show Japan has a per capita wealth of only $214. Compare this with the per capita wealth of citizens of the United States—$3,020. The per capita income of the Japanese people is only $29 a year, while the per capita income in the United States is $600. This means that even a slight economic shock strains the economic stamina of the nation to the breaking point.

Students of the economic situation of Japan are quite confident it will recover prosperity.

Dismissed From Office, Vindicated at Polls

◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆

Dismissed from office of chief county clerk of Dane county, Wis., Miss Selma Fjelstad has gained vindication at the polls. "Fired" by Austin Johnson, county clerk, because she lacked initiative, Miss Fjelstad became a candidate for his job, and won by 2,500 votes.

Blind Girl "Feels" and "Smells" Italy, France

New York.—Nowadays "seeing Europe" is the thing to do. Miss Ruth Atheneo decided it also was the thing for her to do. Packing her grips, she was off, and recently returned on a liner, after several weeks in the tourist centers of the continent.

But for Miss Atheneo "seeing Europe" had its difficulties. Since the age of two, she has been blind and has no recollection of shapes or colors. But her trip was successful and she insisted that she had been the thorough tourist and had "seen Europe."

Italy was felt and France was smelt, was her first chunk out of the task of describing her trip.

Then she described with deftness and a sure knowledge such places as St. Peter's in Rome, and St. Mark's in Venice. And her descriptions surpassed those of the better-than-average traveler.

Eugene V. Debs Is Sinking Fast

Chicago, Oct. 20 (AP)—The tenaciteness that sustained Eugene V. ebs through trying times as the ation's chief exponent of Socialism, as with him today as he lay at eath's door.

Fighting against the odds of a ailing heart and the infirmities of 71 ears, he lay in a state of coma at a uburban sanitarium but physicians aid his desire to live warded off the nd, although he was unconscious.

Mr. Debs had been in that condiion since Saturday night, and the our-day coma was characterized as nost unusual by his physicians, who owever, made known at an early our that they did not expect the paient to live through the day.

A consultation was held late last ight and it was agreed that the disurbance of the heart was "rapidly progressing to a fatal termination." The scientific diagnosis is "myocardiis with auricular fibrillation."

The consultation revealed that the nan who was five times chosen by he Socialist party for the presidency of the United States, the last time while he was in federal prison for declarations against the drafting of men for world war service, pursued his long activity in behalf of labor nd social reforms under the handicap of heart disease. From the age of 15 he suffered from myocarditis, which, with complications, placed the shadow of death upon him.

Advertise Gilboa Dam for Taxes

A despatch from Schoharie on Tuesday says:

The Gilboa dam, part of New York city's water supply system, is to be offered for sale by Schoharie county on Thursday for the amount of the unpaid taxes, $61,000. Advertisements of the sale are appearing in the official county newspaper.

Assessed at more than $3,000,000 and covering 700 acres of land, the great reservoir impounding the waters of Schoharie creek and diverting them ultimately into the Ashokan Dam in the Catskill mountains is virtually completed and is slowly filling. The tax on the land for the last year was due February 1, but because of a dispute over the assessed valuation it has not been paid by New York city. The metropolis contends that the property is rated by the county at a higher figure than lands in its immediate vicinity. Hearings are now being held before a referee to determine the value of dam and reservoir.

Under the law the successful bidder for the property will be required to pay the tax. The city may redeem the extensve parcel within one year after the date of sale.

Boy Broke Neck In 18 Foot Fall

While employed on the Perry Edmunds farm at Rutsonville, town of Gardiner, Monday morning, a son of Leonard Heddon, who resides nearby, fell a distance of 18 feet from an apple tree, breaking his neck. He died instantly. The lad, who was about 17 years old, was employed in picking apples at the time.

THE REFERENDUM

Despite charges to the contrary, the referendum to be voted on this year is not a demand for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or for any change in or nullification of that or any other part of the constitution. It will, if carried in the affirmative, indicate that a majority of the voters in New York state believe that one section of the Volstead Law is not a proper interpretation of the Eighteenth Amendment and that the congress and the state legislatures should take such action as will properly enforce the constitution and that will be enforcable.

The Volstead Law, in one section, defines as intoxicating any liquor containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol. This is nonsensical and everyone knows it is. In another section applying to the making of wine at home it provides that there shall be no penalty if the wine is not sold and is not intoxicating in fact. These sections have been upheld by decisions of the highest courts, although they are contradictory as far as they define the amount of alcohol necessary to make a beverage intoxicating.

Why is the sale of a beverage containing a certain percentage of alcohol banned while if made in the home the same beverage incurs no penalty for the maker or consumer? This is only one of the many inconsistencies in the Volstead Law and it is this inconsistency that those who vote in the affirmative on the referendum will thereby call attention to and suggest a remedy for.

To call for the general application of one section of the Volstead Law and the repeal of another and conflicting section cannot possibly be construed by anyone but hopeless fanatics as "nullification" or in any way tampering with the constitution.

It is temperance that most good citizens desire, not intemperance of either extreme, and the Eighteenth Amendment is reasonably temperate in its requirements. It is thoughtless and ignorant zealots who have frightened a spineless congress into the excesses of the Volstead Law, with all the disregard for law that has followed the vain attempt to enforce the oppressive features of that law. An affirmative vote on the referendum is a vote demanding that the law be made reasonable and at the same time in conformity with the letter and the spirit of the Eighteenth Amendment.

PERSONAL REGISTRATION.

Were there no other reason for keeping Tammany below the Bronx the fact that it never misses a year without trying to force personal registration on the farmers should be sufficient. It would be impossible to point to any session of the legislature within two decades when Tammany did not try to make it necessary for the people living in rural districts to register in person. The object, obviously enough, is to make the farmers, in many instances, lose two complete days' work if they are determined to vote. Naturally, some of the tillers of the soil in remote sections would find it a distinct hardship to drive many miles to register one day and then make the same trip later to cast their ballots on election day.

Year after year some Tammany member introduces a bill to amend the election law so that in places of less than five thousand inhabitants the electors will be compelled to register in person, whereas now they do not have to appear before the board of registry. That this would reduce the Republican vote is the opinion of Tammany and that is why the Democrats are relentless in their efforts to amend the law. The idea put forth by Tammany that it would prevent irregularities has never been entertained seriously, Tammany not yet having been accepted as an organization anxious for an honest count, its opposition to voting machines in New York city being the best evidence of how zealous Tammany is for clean elections.

One of the annual attacks of Tammany on farming sections comes in the form of measures to force personal registration, and the argument is that the boards of registry in the rural communities "vote graveyards" by copying names from tombstones. The assertion is an insult to the Democratic members of the boards who, if there were irregularities, would be as guilty as Republicans. The whole truth is Tammany is convinced that personal registration upstate would hurt Republicans but help Tammany. That is all there is to it and with a Democratic legislature one of the first acts would be to pass a personal registration bill which would almost disfranchise thousands of voters on farms and in the country.

Governor Smith has had to do an awful lot of squirming on that milk question but he has not been able to squirm out yet. The fact is he did not try to hasten the investigation nor did he really pay any attention to it whatever. In the meantime the people were getting diluted milk and the dairymen sending milk into New York city were being cheated, as their milk was being increased in quantity but decreased in quality, producer and consumer both being robbed in the lowest form of thievery.

When voting remember that if the Democrats get control of the legislature they will reapportion the senate and assembly districts and that will mean a Tammany grip on upstate that will remain for years. The thing to do is make sure to elect Republican candidates for the senate and assembly.

If Republican women upstate in Republican districts do not get out and vote and Democratic women downstate in Democratic districts do get out and vote, there can be but one result and upstate Republican women in Republican districts will be to blame. It is up to them.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE.

In these days when the words "high blood pressure" are being used so frequently, it is refreshing to read about low blood pressure and its meaning.

We know that high blood pressure may mean a stroke of paralysis in later days, to some heavy or even light individuals. In the meantime these folks are enjoying life, eating and sleeping well, and able to work or play.

But what of our low pressure individual?

He is usually "tired" all the time, has cold hands and feet, is often mentally depressed, catches cold easily, is slow to throw off a cold or other ailment. He is often thin or undernourished, and has generally a "saggy" appearance.

A Southern physician maintains that low blood pressure is found in people whose heart and abdominal organs are not well supported.

He suggests that they eat well so as to put on a little fat which supports the organs to some extent, and also to wear an abdominal belt as a support.

This is good advice of course, particularly to elderly folks, but for the average person it only goes part way.

Eating good food and plenty of it is quite alright if you use it up in the development of strength and muscle.

The actual force of the heart itself can be increased by a daily walk, which can be gradually increased from week to week, until a matter of two or three miles, or even more is accomplished.

The abdominal support should come from the development of the abdominal muscles which run up and down obliquely, and across the abdomen. Any bending of the body, such as trying to touch the toes, with knees straight, lying on the back and raising the legs to right angle with the body, say twelve to twenty times, twice daily, would soon tighten up the front.

The general health would improve, and the blood pressure would increase. It would be well expended time and energy. In fact it pays a larger interest than any other investment.

Keep up your blood pressure to normal, and you'll get more out of life and give more to it.

PROFESSOR'S TRUNKS CONTAIN MANY SNAKES.

State College, Pa., Oct. 20 (AP)—There is no scrimmage of Pullman porters when Professor George R. Green, head of the nature study department of Pennsylvania State College, appears on the train platform with his luggage.

They are wise to the fact that the professor's bags are as likely to contain snakes, lizards, snapping turtles and horned toads as spare shirts and socks.

Professor Green makes weekly trips to Wilkes-Barre, Scranton, Westchester and Philadelphia to meet teachers taking his extension courses in nature study.

The big test will come next Saturday night when Professor Green leaves for Cleveland, Ohio, with a suitcase containing ten different kinds of snakes. He plans to use the reptiles in a lecture at the annual fall meeting of the Natural History Society of Cleveland on Sunday. In the collection will be a rattler, blacksnake, green, adder, whip, pine, copperhead, milk, ribbon and fox snakes.

THREE SAUGERTIESMANS IN JAIL FOR INTOXICATION

AVIATRIX WILL ABANDON FLYING, DUE TO JEALOUSY

London, Oct. 20 (AP)—The Daily Express says that Mrs. Elliott Lynn, England's pioneer aviatrix, has resolved to abandon flying as a protest against alleged jealousy, which she declares has made her life as a flyer intolerable.

"For months," Mrs. Lynn told the newspaper, "I have had to contend with a campaign of veiled innuendo and open unpleasantness which has made life unbearable. It is all due to jealousy, because I have had too much publicity. I have been ridiculed by men who scoff at the idea of a woman becoming a successful pilot, and sometimes the 'spiteful' chaff has been so bad that I could hardly bring myself to go to the airdrome."

BIRTHDAY SALE

7TH BIRTHDAY OF THE ROSS STORES, OWNERS OF THE L. B. VAN WAGENEN CO. STORE—A 10 DAYS' SALE STARTING THURSDAY, OCT. 21st, AND CONTINUING UNTIL SATURDAY, OCT. 30th, DURING WHICH TIME WE WILL OFFER YOU THE MOST PHENOMENAL BARGAINS EVER.

THE HISTORY OF THE ROSS STORES

Just seven years ago the Ross Stores Inc. started in a small way in Jersey City, N. J., with the one aim in view of giving to the public good staple merchandise at the lowest possible prices. They prospered to such an extent that the first year in that single Jersey City store they did $1,000,000 business. Year after year they have added store after store, until today after being in business only seven years, they have 23 large stores situated in 23 large cities in New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, with a most capable staff of expert buyers who are located in the main buying office at 891 Broadway, New York city. These buyers backed by and through the enormous buying power of the Ross Stores Inc. these buyers are able to go direct to the mills and manufacturers and buy in such vast quantities that they can and do offer you the same class of merchandise at a decided saving.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

FOXES AND WOLVES

"We never waste any time, we never do," said one of the foxes from his den in the zoo.

"Neither do we," said one of the wolves. "I know what you are thinking about."

"Do you?" asked the fox. "Tell me then, if you can, what I am thinking about."

"You're thinking about creatures who sleep for the winter through, aren't you?" asked the wolf.

"I am," said the fox. "It was bright of you to guess."

"Well, I was thinking of the same thing," said the wolf.

"And then you said that you never wasted any time—meaning your family.

"Then I put my thoughts and your words together—I did that quite easily—and so I thought I knew what you meant."

"Well, you did," said the fox.

"I agree with you," said the wolf, "for I don't believe in wasting time.

"Neither do any of the members of my family.

"There are some creatures who don't go to sleep for the winter here in the zoo, but they would if they were free.

"Do You?" Asked the Fox.

Now we never go to sleep for the winter—in the zoo or out of it."

"Neither do we," said the fox.

"We don't want to miss anything that may be going on," said the wolf.

"The very same way we feel about it," said the fox.

"We're wide-awake wolves, we are," said the wolf.

"And we're the wide-awake foxes, we are," said the fox.

So the fox and the wolf and the other foxes and other wolves talked of how foolish creatures were who slept during the whole winter, for they only took regular naps and didn't sleep great long "sleeps" whether free or in the zoo.

And they told stories of the adventures they had had in the winter and of how they would have missed these adventures and excitements if they had been asleep.

They talked, too, of wonderful hunting parties they had had and of their luck—so much of which would have been missed, quite naturally, if they had been asleep.

So the foxes and the wolves decided they were very, very sensible.

And they sent this Zoolet to the Zoolet society, which received verses by the animals about themselves.

This was their Zoolet:

We sleep enough,
But not too much.
We wouldn't sleep
The winter through
For anything
That you might do
For us or for our friends.

We do the same
When we are free
As we do here
Right in the zoo;
The Wolves and
The Foxes, too,
Both families think the same.

FALLING IS A SCIENCE FOR MOVIE COMEDIANS

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Comedians who make good in fast-moving pictures not only must be athletes but they also must have the stamina and courage to withstand hard knocks and falls.

"It isn't what a man stands for that counts—it's what he falls for," wisecracked Walter Catlett.

"And it's not the fall which knocks him out, but the way he falls," supplemented Charlie Winninger.

Little Ones That Hurt.

"It isn't always the big falls that hurt, but many times it's a little fall of three or four feet," added Bobby Vernon.

"The fall not properly broken is the one that keeps the comedian laid up in bed for several days," concluded Al St. John.

Catlett and Winninger of circus days are now clowning for Fox Films but they are serious when it comes to falling.

"Falling into a net should always be done with the feet downward," Winninger says, "but at the moment of striking you should elevate the feet so to strike on the back. If that is impossible, you should gather yourself as nearly as possible into a ball, but hold all your muscles loosely. You can break your leg by not grounding properly."

Some Qualifications.

Bobby Vernon, a chubby athletic chap who plays for Educational, continues:

"If you can run full speed into a heavy parlor chair, fall over it and keep on going and come off with nothing worse than a barked knee, you may qualify as a screen comedian. You have no idea how many corners and edges there are on a chair until you drive into one going as fast as you can run.

"While taking falls is only the least of a comedian's requirements, it is one of the most trying things in the profession."

Al St. John, whose stunts on a trick bicycle are well known, in a new picture rides down the street with a growling lion perched on the rear seat of his bike, the beast jumping up behind the comedian before his bathing beauty friend can get on the bicycle to escape from the animal.

BETTER AND BRIGHTER WAITERS FOR PARIS

Paris, Oct. 20 (AP).—The funeral garb of the conventionally-dressed waiters has proven too sombre for diners who want to savor the traditional gaiety of Paris, and some of the larger restaurants are experimenting with new uniforms.

In one hotel dining room full dress coats of blue, considerably lighter than navy, with brass buttons and white ties are being tried out.

Several restaurants have discarded the Tuxedo type coat with black tie for a modification of evening dress, with the white tie.

The Hotel Stenographer

By Roe Fulkerson

"WELL, Kelly, they are going to settle about the Martians at last," announced the Hotel Stenographer.

"Are they fighting again?" asked the House Detective.

"Kelly, your ignorance is abysmal, if you know what I mean.

"Martians are the people, or bugs, or fish, or whatever it is lives on the planet Mars.

"They are the bugs who bored the canals or the irrigation ditches or the highways, or whatever it is that crisscrosses the planet. The casual says it looks like those people on Mars had beat us to good roads everywhere because the planet is lined with highways or canals that make it look like a sport skirt pattern.

"In August this planet was twenty million miles closer to us than it had been in a hundred years.

"You see, Kelly, the temperature there is about 86 degrees below zero all the time, and if the people live there they must either buy a lot of Hudson seal coats or else they are fur-bearing animals themselves. I wish I could grow a fur coat on me, but I suppose it would be mighty hot when you went in the house.

"A man who weighs one hundred and fifty pounds on this earth would weigh only sixty-four on Mars, Kelly, because he's shrunk so from the cold, I guess.

"If they could rope it and tie it to one of the fixed stars, it would make a fine summer resort for this earth, Kelly, but for aviators to light on it now, would be like a fly trying to light on a peg top because the thing is spinning like mad. Mars has two moons, so it must be a fine place for cuddle couples and. . . ."

"Where do you get that stuff?" interrupted the House Detective.

"Astronomy," replied the girl.

"I'm going to get me a dream book some day," agreed Kelly.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"WITHOUT JOT OR TITTLE"

THE newspapers are telling of the scion of a wealthy and prominent family who, because of his marriage, has been cut off by his father "without jot or tittle." The phrase means, of course, that he has been left absolutely nothing.

A "tittle," from the Latin "titulus," meaning label, is a distinguishing mark used over a letter for purposes of pronunciation, as the tittle over the "n" in canon. It is accepted, too, as meaning a particle, anything without value or significance.

"Jot," though of different derivation, has the same significance. Taken from the Greek "iota," it signifies the dot over the "i" or any point or tittle. It also is used figuratively to describe anything of the slightest value.

And so the phrase "without jot or tittle" is well chosen to describe a lack of any possessions at all. For it would be a highly-imaginative person who could think of something that means less than "without jot or tittle."

MANSIONS OF OLD VIRGINIA MARKED BY SIMPLE DIGNITY

Spacious Manors of Prerevolutionary Days Mute Evidence of Simplicity of Pioneers.

Norfolk, Va.—Old Virginia homesteads in which were born and reared the makers of Virginia and the United States stand today, mute evidences of the simplicity and genteel dignity which surrounded those men and women pioneers.

Just as the cradle of America has often been said to have been at Jamestown, so the oldest mansions in Virginia are to be found there. And extending slowly, as did these early settlers over Virginia and the rest of the country, these palatial homes dotted the state. Naturally, this expanding movement followed the rivers, and so most of Virginia's colonial residences are to be found close by the banks of the York, James, the Potomac and Rappahannock rivers.

Included among the several hundred colonial residences are scores whose histories predate revolutionary days and the Declaration of Independence, the one hundred fiftieth anniversary of which is being celebrated this year. Many of them are national shrines.

Monticello, Arlington, Mount Vernon, Kenmore—symbolic of Thomas Jefferson, the Custises and Lees, George Washington, and the Lewises—all have become hallowed and have been dedicated to the nation. Four palaces representing as many distinct types of architectural beauty, these colonial mansions would be famous for their beauty alone.

Brandon, Westover, Berkeley, Shirley, garden spots along the James, once housed the Harrisons, Byrds, and Carters, all prominent in the early life of Virginia and the United States. Around Williamsburg are the homes of President Tyler and many others who helped make history, while few sections of Virginia cannot claim one or more of these palatial residences of colonial times.

In this advanced civilization which crowds homes almost one upon another, these picturesque, spacious manors, free of gaudy ornaments and serene in their large settings, serve to recall the simple, wholesome environment which made for the firm foundation of the United States.

Invents New Airplane Harder to Crumple Up

Dayton, Ohio.—An airplane that will be harder to "crack up" than most of those now flying has been designed by D. E. Dunlap, aeronautical engineer, and soon will be ready for test flights.

Two of the fruitful causes of trouble when an airplane goes into a nose-dive are the propeller and heavy power plant, which often are forced back upon the pilot, injuring or killing him.

Dunlap's ship will have two motors placed between the wings and at the sides and back of the pilot and his companion. They are "pushers" with the propellers in the rear. This eliminates dirt from the engine and the terrific noise and gives passengers a clear view directly ahead.

Of more importance, it permits the ship to be built with a blunt metal nose. When it comes down on its nose, it will simply "nose over," Dunlap says.

The ship will be amphibian, with both land and water landing gears, which in later models will be arranged so that they may be switched by the pilot from his cockpit while flying. The landing gear also will be equipped with a brake and will be able to land and take off in twice its own length.

Embroidered Kneecaps Added to Shorter Skirts

Paris.—Skirts now end above the knees, that authority on women's wear, A. G. B., or Art, Gout, Beaute (Art, Taste and Beauty), records, and they have scalloped edges, which make them still more abbreviated.

This has brought kneecaps into vogue. They are embroidered, beaded, laced and made to match the hem of the dress. They look rather like the frills of the knickers that were worn in 1890, and they help to limit the revelations of a very short skirt.

Fur is being worn more and more. The latest notion is to treat squirrel, fox and rabbit with peroxide to give them the fashionable blond tint. A woman who dresses well will have a selection of colors, white, pale yellow and silver, and a summer ermine coat for motoring. The natural summer color of ermine is golden blond, which turns white in winter.

Tourists Throng Russia; Hotels Taxed to Capacity

Leningrad.—Not since prewar days have there been as many tourists in Russia as there are now. The hotels in Moscow and Leningrad have been taxed beyond their capacity and the local authorities have been forced to provide accommodations for travelers in private houses. Nearly [illegible] South American tourists, mostly Argentines, have arrived here, bringing the number from North and South America alone to almost [illegible].

Posters Warn Blasphemers

Convenience and Safety in Waste Disposal

A safe home—a happy, healthy atmosphere—the gas Home Incinerator helps you find these. It burns each day the accumulated left-overs of food, papers and rubbish. No attraction, then, for flies. Fire hazard is greatly reduced by the Home Incinerator.

If waste collections are irregular it will no longer bother you. Your home and your yard will be attractive—free from distracting odds and ends.

It is easy and safe to operate. If you move the Home Incinerator may be taken with you and re-installed.

The HOME INCINERATOR

Incinerator advantages may easily be yours. The regular 2¾ bushel burner may be purchased on convenient terms for $168, or at a cash price of $160. The 1 bushel burner may be had for the term price of $120.75, or for $115 cash. These prices include the handy step-saving Time-o-stat. Our terms make the Home Incinerator easy to own. Stop Giving Children Rides

Stop Practice of Giving "Lifts" to School Children Is Warning Broadcast by the American Automobile Association—Many Accidents Laid to This Cause.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 20.—Calling upon all motorists and parents for the fullest cooperation, the American Automobile Association has launched a nationwide campaign to bring to an end "the dangerous practice" of passing automobilists giving rides to school children.

"Hundreds of accidents are caused annually because children do not realize that this practice constitutes one of the gravest of highway hazards and parents and motorists should concentrate their energies on discouraging this habit which seems to be manifesting itself on a constantly larger scale," says a statement from A. A. A. National Headquarters.

"The reopening of schools in all parts of the country has found an overgrowing tendency on the part of pupils everywhere to ask lifts from passing motorists and the time is ripe for a concerted effort to bring this practice to an abrupt end."

In the opinion of the officials of the national motoring body, the problem calls for full cooperation on the part of parents and motorists. Neither, they declare, can afford to shirk responsibility in the matter. Teachers, too, can do much toward discouraging the child from taking such risks.

Motorist Has Liability.

"It is a trying situation that the motorist faces when he is signalled from the curb or roadside by a little child who wants a ride," says the A. A. A. statement, "but in a majority of cases it is best to pass by in the interests of safety. The driver who stops to pick up a youngster renders himself liable for anything that might happen to his suddenly acquired ward during the course of the ride. Children thus picked up too often are careless or unruly and the host faces the doubly hard task of trying to drive and at the same time keep a weather eye on his passenger. The situation makes for accidents and the motorist is liable.

"The man who follows out the advice of passing up an opportunity to give a child a lift has the expert opinion of traffic officials everywhere to back up his attitude. The risk is too great to be assumed lightly."

The role parents should play is in warning the child of the risk he takes in crowding out into the traffic stream to beckon his desire for a lift, the A. A. A. maintains. The practice should be discouraged and parents should make it their duty to see that the warning is followed strictly.

Not Conscious of Danger.

"Children are not conscious of the extremely hazardous position in which they place themselves under such circumstances," the statement continues. "It is a common sight to see youngsters of all ages forcing their way right into the middle of on-rushing traffic if they see what looks like a good chance to get a ride.

"They not only endanger themselves but interfere with the flow of traffic in a manner that is distinctly menacing.

"Motorists continually are being forced to swerve quickly from one traffic lane into another and, compelled to act with such celerity. It frequently is the case that they have no time to give signals, one of the most common causes of accidents. Hundreds of accidents are caused by these conditions and many of them are attended with fatal results."

School officials and teachers can do a great deal to discourage children under their care from resorting to this practice, according to the motor club officials.

"It is far better for the child to ignore his plea for a lift than to allow him to endanger his life and the lives of others," the statement continues.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Questions Right Of Sects to Live

Lutheran President Calls Church Divisions an Error—Decries Worldliness—Demands of Congregations Deeper Spirituality.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 20.—Delegates to the fifth convention of the United Lutheran Church in America assembled at the Hotel Jefferson sat up and took notice this morning when they got the official address of their president, Dr. F. H. Knubel, of New York. Following a mild and quite captivating reference to the unity existent among early converts to Christianity, and with copious, convincing quotations from the writings of the Apostle Paul, the executive straightly questioned the ability of numerous sections of the Christian Church to justify their continuance. He suggested humble self-examination, in order to determine how far the spirit of the world has superseded the original gifts of the Holy Ghost; which divine gifts, he explained, were given before the early followers of Christ developed ecclesiastical organization, or produced the associations of the early centuries of the Christian era. It was these gifts that created ties of unity and the free flow of God's love through the souls of men.

In vivid contrast to the intimate fellowship of the early believers with each other, was their separateness from the world. Conscious that they were "a peculiar people," (a people for God's own possession, is a modern translation), they yielded themselves wholly to a new relationship. From the Holy Ghost they had received a divine gift "which centered in the remission of their sins but also in an inner power of new life." Hence a "great fear" came upon the whole congregation. This mystical bond of unity was weakened only when the intrusion of the world into the church dimmed their consciousness of the divine. Dreams of temporal power, cajoling projects of rapid extension, and schemes for personal and group rewards shattered their early fellowship. In contrast to this, Christians today appear further separated from one another than they are from the world.

Narrow Mindedness and Intolerance.

Narrow mindedness and intolerance are not causes, according to Dr. Knubel, but symptoms. Greater unity in Christendom will not follow comparisons of creeds and dogmas, but will result from deeper discernment of the indwelling gifts of divine grace. Lack of such discernment has lessened the authority of revealed truth, which is found unchangeable in the testimony of Jesus. Modernism's dangerous mistake lies in its assumption "that all knowledge is relative; the bedrock of truth cannot be found." On the contrary, the address states, the Gospel, the Word of God, is the testimony of Jesus; it is the eternal truth of God for men, for their salvation. It must be kept complete and pure. Unless in a denomination's life there is something genuinely essential to the pureness and completeness of the testimony of Jesus, for which the group may continue to live apart from other Christians, its existence cannot be justified. Where a denomination has such a trust in their keeping, that denomination is something more than a merely human thing; there is something divine in its existence.

Church Sacredness Contaminated.

President Knubel believes possession of the word of God and of the sacraments confers on the church a form of sacredness, which no other human organization has or can claim. He rebuked folks who would reduce their fellowship in Christ to the level of temporal association. He said, "There has never been a time when so many busy activities were in operation which approach the churches, without the least regard for their sacredness. There are endless organizations, movements, conferences, cooperative endeavors, publications, and also tireless individuals. Some aim to take their places alongside the churches as being equals. Some seek to be allied to the churches in various relationships. Some clearly wish merely to use the churches. The regrettable fact to note is the 'superiority complex' which they often possess, going to the length sometimes of dictation to the churches. A sad accompaniment is the manifest sincerity which pervades them. They are seemingly unconscious that they are aiming to master the churches instead of serving them, using them instead of being used by them, sapping the churches' energies instead of adding to the same. Their worst influence is their ability to entangle great numbers of the churches' members in their plans. It is good to report that in the last few years a better tendency is becoming manifest in the more important organizations, that they begin to recognize the sacredness of the denominations, and that they organize themselves by the use of direct representatives of the churches without the use of dominating, coopted, free-lance individuals who represent nothing beyond themselves."

Protests "Pulpit Individualism."

Because of the separateness of the church from the world and its direct relationship with the kingdom of God, President Knubel urged that clergymen draw a careful line between their ministry of the word and secular movements and influences. He declared against pulpit individualism, expressing his belief that a Lutheran pulpit is expected to represent the Lutheran Church as a whole in addition to the congregation's witness in the community. On the same basis he demanded the presence of the laity in their pews when the congregation meets.

Dr. Knubel is the first and the only president of the United Lutheran Church in America, having been elected eight years ago when this group of congregations was organised. He lives in New York, and from an office at 39th street and Fifth avenue, sees the hurry and bustle of the wo..d. This fourth address is quite unlike the usual official message of an executive. It contains practically no reference to progress or failure during his administration. It is also unique in the absence of any reference to politics, sociology, or economics.

WEST SHOKAN.

West Shokan, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Morton Roe, who underwent an operation at the Kingston City Hospital, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood and Mr. and Mrs. Cavanaugh and families have returned to their homes at Pelham after spending the summer in the Sherman bungalow.

The Misses Charlotte Mericle, Ernestine Healey of Kingston and the Messrs. Scott and Harry Smith of Utica spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Healey.

Pythian Sisters Card Party.

A card party will be held at Pythian Hall Wednesday evening, November 6, under the supervision of Mrs. Harford Shultis and Mrs. Fred Sheffell for the benefit of A. W. Reynolds Temple, No. 23. Playing will start at 8 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served. The public is invited.

Ellenville, Oct. 20.—Miss Bernice Fitzgerald is spending some time visiting friends in Newburgh.

William Johnson motored to Monticello Saturday of last week and returned Sunday accompanied by Mrs. Johnson, who spent several days last week visiting her sister, Mrs. Otto Lang.

Dr. F. A. Bueltmann is having the interior of his home redecorated.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Tenney of Storrs, Conn., are spending some time at the home of Sheriff and Mrs. Wells in Eaton Court.

Miss Florence Quick, registered nurse, left Ellenville last week to take up a new position in New York city until spring.

Eugene Terwilliger, who assisted on the motorcycle force this summer, is now doing special night watchman work during the illness of the regular night watchman, John Brown.

Messrs. S. A. Van Wagener, B. H. Terwilliger and Clarence A. Hoornbeek, who are motoring home from Florida, expect to reach Ellenville some time this week.

The various classes in the Ellenville High School elected their officers for the year on Monday, October 11, as follows:

Senior Class—President, Ben Lonstein; vice president, Jack Beyer; secretary, Hester Craft; treasurer, Nathan Rosenberg; reporter to Sphinx, Irving Trachtenberg; social director, Lena Frey; faculty advisors, Ada C. Holmes, Ruth Teft.

Junoir Class—President, Julius Ervigkeit; vice president, Helen Rose; secretary, Frances Divine; treasurer, Nathan Post; reporter to Sphinx, Bernard Weiss; faculty advisors, Ruth E. Rider, Margaret Tunney.

Here's my smoke-platform

A JIMMY-PIPE with an ample bowl. A tobacco that is mild and mellow, yet not "mollycoddle," if you get me—and you do. You know what I mean . . . mild, yet with plenty of body to let you know you are smoking. A tobacco that smokes cool.

A tobacco that is fragrant in the package, to whet the appetite, and equally fragrant as you smoke it. A tobacco that does not bite the tongue or parch the throat. A tobacco so wonderfully satisfying that you are kept busy smoking and reloading, all day long.

There's only one tobacco in the whole wide world that I know of which meets this platform. Its name is "Prince Albert" and I claim it really is the prince of smokes. More men smoke this tobacco than any other brand, which is important and likewise true.

If you are still outside the fold of contented jimmy-pipers, buy a tidy red tin of P. A. today. No matter how satisfied you appear to be with your present brand, try Prince Albert. I promise you a smoke-experience that will be new and delightfully different.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Women's Part in State Education

Fifteen of the Fair Sex Candidates for State Assembly—Also Seek Election to Other Offices Within the State.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—Women are playing prominent part in New York state's election this fall.

Fifteen of the fair sex are candidates for the state assembly, and one of their number, Rhoda Fox Graves, is seeking re-election on the Republican ticket in St. Lawrence county. Not to be outdone, the Democrats of St. Lawrence county have called upon a woman to be their candidate for assembly but in another district. Of the other candidates eight have been nominated by the Socialists, three by the Democrats and two by the workers' party.

Women, also, are seeking election to other offices within the gift of the state. Three are running for the state senate on the Socialist ticket and four are running for congress, also on the Socialist ticket. The prohibition party has designated a woman as its candidate for lieutenant-governor and the workers party has women on its ticket for state comptroller and attorney-general. The Socialists have chosen a woman candidate for the United States Senate.

In a list of candidates issued today, Secretary of State Florence E. S. Knapp pointed out that there are six candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, comptroller, attorney-general and United States senator. In addition to the candidates of the Democratic, Republican Socialist tickets, the social labor, workers and prohibition parties have named candidates.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Wednesday, October 20.

Wednesday night the great Electrical Exposition opens in New York city at the Grand Central Palace. WRNY will operate a special broadcast studio and will broadcast the principal events of the exposition. The opening ceremonies will be heard starting at 7:15. Thomas Edison is expected to speak, but if he is not well enough, his son, Charles Edison, will deliver the principal address. The Eastman Theater program from WGY and WMAK at 7:30 will provide a musical program of worth. Dance music in symphonic style will be provided by the Troubadours from the WEAF chain at 9:00 and at 10:30 the light opera, "Pirates of Penzance," will be presented by the same New York station and several of its allied stations. Herbert Hoover, secretary of Commerce, will address the radio audience from WHAS at 9:15.

CORNELL'S MEMORIAL TO WORLD WAR VETERANS

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—A dormitory group of architectural beauty and of practical value will be Cornell University's memorial to her sons who died in their country's service during the World War.

The memorial will consist of two tower units in the dormitory group, connected by a cloister. The building of the towers is to be financed by the gifts for the endowment of rooms and entrance portals therein. Each room or entry so endowed will form a memorial to the alumnus to whom it is dedicated and will bear his name. The names of all the Cornell men who died in the war will be emscribed on tablets in the cloister connecting the two tower units.

Gifts totaling $10,000 have already been announced. One $5,000 contribution is from Mrs. George L. Walter and Howard K. Walter, '14, of Pittsburgh, Pa., to endow a room in memory of George L. Walter, Jr., '12. A similar amount has been given by Mr. and Mrs. William W. Splane of Oil City, Pa., to endow a room as a permanent memorial to their son, Lieutenant Alvin W. Splane, '21, who was killed in an airplane accident at Payne Field, West Point, Miss., on December 26, 1918.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster without the burn. You feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

Troubadours for Victory Ball Here

The correspondence department, which has jurisdiction over the analysis of the thousands of letters received from WEAF's fans, has recently concluded a study of mail regarding regular features broadcasting from that station. High honors, in so far as the number of letters received is concerned, for the period under consideration go to the Ipana Troubadours, a regular Wednesday evening feature. The Vikings and Blanch Elizabeth Wade, the G. R. Kinney Company story teller, both Friday features, practically ran "neck and neck" for second place, but were more than a thousand letters below the total reached by the popular Ipana Troubadours. Other WEAF features which stood highest in the list were, respectively, the Gold Dust Twins, the Atwater Kent Radio Hour, Shinola Merrymakers, Silvertown Cord Orchestra, the Cliquot Eskimos and the Eveready Hour in the order named.

This is a very interesting record of the immense popularity of the Ipana Troubadours. The uniform high quality of their music has made thousands of friends for them throughout the east, and Kingston Post of the American Legion is very fortunate in securing their services for their annual Victory Ball on November 11th. Their appearance here will be under the personal direction of S. C. Lanin, their regular leader, and they will furnish a one hour concert, commencing at 8 o'clock, followed by four hours of dance music. One of their regular weekly broadcasts will be heard on the WEAF chain from 9 to 9:30 o'clock.

So many people who are seeking eternal youth have completed the first lap. They have arrived at one of the constituents of youth—eternal foolishness.

The Governor of Texas,
  A dauntless one are they
Though frenzied foes assail her
  He never shows dismay.

For erring folks in prison
  Her tender spirit grieves,
But let them go to college
  And watch him roll his sleeves.

Amid the envious clamor
  Of those who seek her crown,
The governor of Texas

When rivalry malicious
  Would hurl him on the shelf,
She bravely do their duty
  Regardless of themself.

  The legislature blame,
But the governor of Texas

Real Sheik Eats Like Other Men

Wears Turban and Glorious Robes but Insists on Eating in Regular Dining Room of London Hotel—Other Events in Britain.

London, Oct. 20 (AP).—Even the Emir Feisal, the sheik of sheiks, son of the King of Hedjaz, has become westernised.

In spite of the fact that the Emir Feisal still wears a turban and the glorious robes and ivory-handled swords of the Arabian desert, he insists on eating his meals in the regular dining room of the Hyde Park Hotel, where he can watch gay crowds doing the Charleston.

The attendants of the Arab potentate have done everything in their power to keep their charge aloof from ordinary mankind. They insisted on having his servants quartered on a different floor from that occupied by the prince, and also arranged a private dining room in his imperial highness's suite. But he balked and insisted on eating where he could see the merry throng.

Several of the better-known British authors have never read certain mid-Victorian novels which have become household classics, so the Daily Express has discovered, while a few others have "discovered" them only recently for the first time.

Arnold Bennett, for instance, has just read "A Tale of Two Cities."

The audacious young author of the "Diary of a Young Lady of Fashion"—Magdalen King-Hall—has selected at random from a list of unread tomes "The Last Days of Pompeii" by Bulwer-Lytton.

Abandoning a custom of past generations of Royalty, the Duke of York intends that his new town house, overlooking Green Park, shall be known merely by its number. He does not purpose to give any name to it.

Before the Duke and Duchess of York start for Australia early next year a miniature of their daughter, little Princess Elizabeth, is to be painted so that the Duchess may take it with her. The same artist has painted miniatures of the two sons of Princess Mary, which the Queen always takes with her on her travels.

British ladybirds are temperamental. They won't come home to roost in nice little winter quarters provided for them by the Ministry of Agriculture so they may get busy on the greenfly early in the spring.

The Ministry collected many thousands of the ladybirds last year and put them in cork homes at the Rothamstead experimental station, Harpenden. A good proportion survived the winter, but as they cannot be taught to fly home and farmers cannot be expected to gather them by hand, and put them there, the experiment has proved a failure.

HATHORN AND GEYSER MOST BENEFICIAL

Natural Sparkling Health Waters That Quickly Prove Results

It pays to get rid of the things which put an extra strain on the heart, such as indigestion, acidity and unhealthy conditions in the stomach and alimentary tract.

Hathorn natural sparkling laxative water, bottled under State supervision at the State Owned Hathorn spring at Saratoga, is a trustworthy eliminant. Its action is gentle and natural. Taken before breakfast it gives every crook and turn of the canal a thorough cleansing. The taste is delightful. For generations Hathorn has been prescribed by physicians, endorsed by health authorities and praised by millions who have journeyed to Saratoga for the purpose of drinking it. They have it shipped to them all over the world because they know that it is a pleasant and effective drink to keep them in good working order.

Geyser is a delightful table water that relieves acidity and indigestion. If you have eaten too much sweet, drink Geyser. If you have eaten too much meat, drink Geyser. If you have eaten too much starchy food, drink Geyser. If you have eaten food that is too rich, drink Geyser. You will be surprised how it moves conditions back to normal so that you feel as if you had eaten just the right thing and are digesting it in a perfectly healthy way.

Today's Story in New York History

Daring Exploit of John Champe for the Capture of Benedict Arnold Started October 20, 1780.

Benedict Arnold, the traitor, was received by Howe the British commander-in-chief at New York, and was promptly paid the price of his treachery—a commission of brigadier general. Quarters were assigned him in the Watts house, 3 Broadway, from which he issued proclamations offering military preferment to all Continental officers and men who might desert their colors and join the provisional corps which he was authorized to recruit for the King's service.

Immediately after Arnold's flight from West Point, General Washington became anxious to learn how far the poison of disaffection had entered the American military system. To this end he consulted Lieutenant Colonel Henry Lee, commanding "Lee's Legion," and a plan was matured by which the delicate duty of entering the British lines, probing the rumors concerning disaffection, and capturing General Arnold was intrusted to Sergeant-Major John Champe, of Lee's comand.

Champe was a Virginian, aged twenty-four, who possessed a daring spirit of patriotism, and was absolutely fearless in the face of danger. He was a promising non-commissioned officer, and an aspirant for a commission.

After some hesitation Champe yielded to the solicitations of his commanding officer, and agreed to undertake the hazardous and delicate service.

He was to apparently desert, deliver letters to two individuals in New York, unknown to each other, who had long been in the confidence of the general. He was to procure such aid in bringing Arnold away as his judgment would dictate; he was strictly to forbear killing Arnold, under any circumstances.

At 11 o'clock at night, October 20, 1780, Champe took his cloak, valise and orderly-book, mounted his horse secretly, and with three guineas in his pocket, dashed down the road to Bergen. Just outside the American lines he narrowly escaped a patrol returning to camp. They reported the incident, and the absence of Champe and his horse was discovered.

Lee had retired, but was not asleep. He managed to delay the pursuit of the supposed deserter for more than an hour, but fleet horses brought his indignant comrades in sight of Champe, near Elizabethtown Point, just as he plunged into the river.

He succeeded in attracting the attention of British patrol-boats near the bank. They covered the retreat of the deserter by firing at his pursuers and taking him into one of their boats. The mounted detachment secured Champe's horse, with which they returned to camp.

Champe was taken before Sir Henry Clinton, where he made a favorable impression, and was ultimately enlisted by Arnold as a recruiting sergeant.

In a few days Champe was able to send word to Washington, by one of his secret agents, that his fears as to serious disaffection were groundless. He was not so fortunate, however, in executing the remainder of his instructions.

He had arranged with a confederate to seize Arnold in the garden attached to his quarters, carry him as a drunken soldier to a boat, cross to the Jersey shore, and deliver him to a party from his old corps, who were to await him there.

The night for the capture was appointed, and Lee awaited at Hoboken in person, accompanied by a party of dragoons and three led horses.

Unfortunately, however, on that very day Arnold changed his headquarters. Champe's new corps was sent on board a vessel about to sail for the south, and the plot failed. He landed in Virginia, but after Arnold effected his junction with Cornwallis at Petersburg, Champe managed to escape, and rejoined the American army in North Carolina, where, as soon as his story became known, he was at once made a hero.

General Greene furnished him with a horse and money, and forwarded him on to General Washington, who gave him an honorable discharge, fearing for his safety if he again fell into the enemy's hands, for he would inevitably be hanged.

It is related that in 1798, when hostilities were threatened by the French, and President Adams appointed General Washington to the command of the United States army, the latter sent to General Henry Lee and inquired for Champe, having the intention of placing him in command of a company of infantry; but the brave and patriotic sergeant-major had removed to Kentucky, and had died shortly before that time.

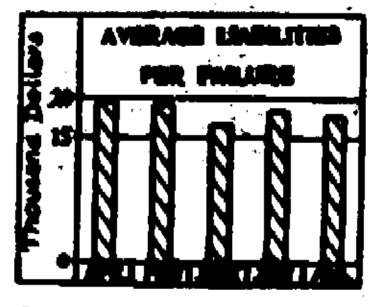
SWIFTER CREDIT POLICY NEEDED.

Babson Park, Mass., Oct. 20 (Special).—The credit situation is better, as shown by the proportion of cities reported in Bradstreet's with collections other than slow. People should take advantage of this situation to clear up weak accounts and improve cash position. This is especially true in the southern territory where over recent weeks, collections seem to have averaged a little better than for the country as a whole, and where, because of the less favorable outlook for cotton districts, conditions may shortly become worse.



September failures, according to Dun's compilation, were just under $30,000,000, while the number of insolvencies was 1,437, the decline being greater than the usual seasonal movement. The lowest failure figures usually come just before the decline in business. Therefore, now is the time to prepare. It is also interesting to note that the average liabilities per failure during the past few months have remained fairly uniform around 17 thousand dollars.

BESSIE SAMARADELLIS, MARY SOMARY, Creditor, DR. SAMUEL LEVITCH, Creditor, MARY SOMARY, as assignee of the claims mentioned in Schedule C of the account, and STATE TAX COMMISSION, and to all persons interested in the estate of PETER SOMARY, late of the County of Ulster, deceased, as creditors, legatees, next of kin or otherwise,

SEND GREETING:

Upon the petition of Penry Somary, who resides at Highland, Ulster County, New York,

YOU AND EACH OF YOU are hereby cited to show cause before our Surrogate of the County of Ulster, at the Surrogate's Court of said County, held at the Surrogate's office in the City of Kingston, in said County, on the 15th day of November, 1926, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the account of Penry Somary, as administrator of the estate of said deceased, should not be judicially settled and allowed, and to show cause why the said real estate of said decedent should not be sold for the payment of his debts and funeral expenses.

And if any of the persons interested are under the age of twenty-one years, they are required to appear by their guardian, if they have one, or if they have none, they are required to appear and apply for the appointment of one, or in the event of their neglect or failure to do so a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate as required to act for them in the proceeding.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, we have caused the seal of said Surrogate's Court to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. George F. Kaufman, Surrogate of said County, at the City of Kingston, the 10th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six.

[L. S.] GEORGE F. KAUFMAN, Surrogate.

CITY TREASURER'S OFFICE

Special Assessment.

Notice is hereby given that I have received the warrant for collection of the special assessment of 75 per cent of the expense incurred in the construction of a Storm Water Sewer in Gage Street, beginning at a point four hundred sixty-four feet east of Foxhall Avenue, thence in a westerly direction through Gage Street to Foxhall Avenue and through Foxhall Avenue to a connection with the existing sewer in O'Neil Street.

The same has been left with me for collection at my office in the City Hall, in said City; that for thirty days from the date of this notice the said assessment may be paid without additional fees or charges, and that for the twenty succeeding days two per centum additional will be collected.

If any of the said special assessment shall remain unpaid at the date last mentioned, I shall give a written or printed notice to the person or persons against whom such assessment stands charged, requiring them to pay such unpaid assessment to me at my office within thirty days thereafter, with five per centum fees thereon and one dollar for such notice as required by the City Charter.

Dated at the Treasurer's Office, City of Kingston, N. Y., October 8, 1926.

WILLIAM C. DE WITT, City Treasurer.

Lutherans Oppose Consolidation

Unionistic Movement Among Church Denominations Not Endorsed, Disapproval Being Directed at Methods Employed and Results Attained Rather Than Objectives of Promoters.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 20.—Evidence that the leaders of United Lutheran Church in America are not disposed to give unqualified endorsement to unionistic movements among the church denominations is revealed in the report of its Executive Board, presented today to the Biennial Convention of the Lutheran Church here. Three phases of the effort for unionism are criticized by as many different Lutheran commissions. These reports were presented to the convention through the medium of the Executive Board. The three agencies which failed to meet the entire approval of the Lutheran commentators are the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, which claims to represent some twenty millions of Protestants; the Universal Christian Conference on Life and Work held at Stockholm; and the proposed World Conference on Faith and Order.

The disapproval of the Lutherans is directed at the methods employed and results thus far attained, rather than at the objectives as defined by promoters of these movements. Lutherans are participating to an extent in the undertakings which they criticize, thereby manifesting a spirit of cooperation, but it is evident from the reports of Lutheran commissioners that they are not disposed to favor a merger of denominations and that whatever endorsemet they may give to unionistic movements will be qualified by substantial reservation.

The comments concerning the Federal Council of Churches are made by a Board of Visitors, composed of the Reverend Drs. W. H. Greever, of Columbia, S. C.; J. W. Horine, of Columbia, S. C.; and C. F. W. Hoppe, of Savanah, Ga.

Federal Council Not Representative.

The Commission reported that it found that the Federal Council is "more formally than actually representative of the constituency for which it seeks and acts." The constituent bodies of the Council appeared to the Commissions "to be used as a supporting constituency for a comparatively small group of men, who enjoy a large degree of assumed independence, so organized as to make it practically self-perpetuating through a chosen personnel."

In its relation to society and to government, the Federal Council appeared to the Commission to "go far in attempting in the name of Protestantism what it condemns in Romanism." The report:

"The Federeal Council, through the multiplication of commissions is projecting its activities and is building up machinery to such a degree that only one of two things can result in the no distant future: (1) it must collapse from within, or (2) it must be recognized as a super-church body."

However, the Lutherans found that along certain lines the Federal Council had been an efficient agency in promoting legitimate cooperation among groups of churches, in cultivating a better public sentiment and in modifying governmental policies where the rights of the church were involved.

Frank disappointment is voiced by Lutheran delegates sent to the Universal Christian Conference on Life and Work at Stockholm because of the failure of that Conference to lead the way to the application of Christian ethics to present day problems. The Commission states:

Say "Message" Is "Hesitant".

"Your delegation feels that the world has a right to expect at least some clear, strong pronouncement upon the great social, industrial and international questions in which all men are so deeply interested today. The conference adopted a Message to the Churches, but not a single utterance of the kind was made." Instead the "message" is characterised as "hesitant" and "non-committal".

"The conference has told us of no new and wiser ways of applying Christ's teachings to the problems that confront all nations," the delegates continue. "The church universal had a great opportunity to exert a determining influence upon the new order now emerging, but it lost that opportunity in the failure of the conference to deliver a message that would carry conviction and power to the ends of the earth and guide the world into better ways.

"Those who have become wearied with the effort to secure unity in the Christian faith, both as to content and confessional statement, and consequently have conceived the idea of uniting the churches in life and work along the lines of social and industrial reforms and in the Christianizing of international relations, have had their disillusionment."

Working Together Not Easy.

Nevertheless, the delegates see certain values to be derived from the conference, one of which is to learn "by rude experience that the idea of working together where differences exist is not always as easy to carry out as it might seem".

The Lutheran commission on the World Conference on Faith and Order—proposed to bring about greater unity in Christendom—takes issue with the draft of the agenda prepared for consideration at that conference. A revised draft of the agenda was submitted to the agenda committee, striking out the whole preamble and a section asserting that "utmost endeavors should be made to restore the present day church to the condition of the days of the Apostles when the only churches were the local parts of one church".

While concurring with the proposal in the agenda that the united church should re-affirm the truth of the Apostles' and Nicene creeds, the Lutheran commission asserts:

"We cannot accept those creeds as a sufficient basis for a union of the separated churches. Further agreements in behalf are a necessary condition of such a union."

SINGLE G., A GREAT PACER, HAS BEEN RETIRED.

Richmond, Ind., Oct. 20 (AP).—Single G., one of the greatest pacers in the history of the American turf, will thrill grandstand crowds no more. He has been retired and will serve his remaining days in the stud.

William G. Barefoot, of Cambridge City, owner of the famous racer, announced last night that he has turned Single G. over to Richard Granger of Richmond under a lease at Granger's farm.

Single G. made but one Grand Circuit appearance this year, in the free-for-all at Cleveland.

The sixteen-year-old pacer holds a record of 1:58½ made at Syracuse in 1923, when he was 13. In that start he paced the first heat in 1:58½ and the third in 1:58¾, thus setting a world's record for the two fastest heats in any race.

THE LUSCIOUS PEACH

No more delicious dish for dessert can be served than one of sliced peaches with cream and sugar. When peaches are plentiful one likes to vary the method of serving.

A most appetising pie may be made by baking a rich crust and when cold fill it with sliced peaches well-sugared; cover with sweetened cream, whipped.

A bird's nest pudding is another way of serving a peach pudding. Slice the peaches (those not too ripe may be used for this dish), cover with a rich biscuit batter and bake. Turn out inverted on a large plate, sprinkle with sugar, dot with butter and a sprinkling of nutmeg if liked and serve cut into pie-shaped pieces.

Peach Pudding.—Pour a cupful of hot milk over a cupful of dry bread crumbs and let stand five minutes; add half a cupful of sugar, the well-beaten yolks of three eggs and the stiffly-beaten white of one. Mix well and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Heap thinly-sliced peaches well-sweetened over the top and cover with a meringue made of two egg whites and three tablespoonfuls of sugar. Cover the pudding with the meringue and bake a delicate brown.

Peaches With Rice.—Cook one cupful of rice until tender, adding milk, at the last of the cooking; season with butter, add sugar to sweeten, then pour into a hollow mold. When ready to serve unmold, and fill the center with sweetened sliced peaches. Serve with sugar and cream.

Peach Chutney.—Peel three pounds of peaches, put them into a saucepan with a pint of mild vinegar, cook until tender. Pound in a mortar four ounces of onion, two ounces of garlic, five ounces of fresh ginger root; add the peaches, six ounces of raisins, one ounce each of white mustard seed and chili peppers, and six ounces of sugar. Simmer for ten minutes, adding more vinegar if needed. Bottle for winter use. This is especially well-liked by the English, though they use apple instead of peaches.

Gold Fever Wanes In Adirondacks

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—The latest attack of Adirondack gold fever, which appeared near Croghan, Lewis county, is subsiding, just as similar attacks have waned in the past.

A report that a Croghanite had discovered a process for extracting the precious metal from Adirondack sand on a paying basis revived latent hopes that perhaps the experts had at last been confounded and that there might be "pay dirt" in these old mountains, after all. However, the discovery, said to have been made after more than twenty years of research, proved to be only a report, and took its place in the long list of like rumors that have stirred the hearts of mountaineers in years gone by.

Thanks to the repeated assurances of geologists that not an ounce of gold has ever been found in New York state, people are far more incredulous of gold rumors than they once were. Nevertheless, the reports occasionally bob up, and there are always a few natives who feel that "the real thing" may have come at last. Years ago Saranac Lake went through a severe case of the fever, and some of the town's "best citizens" were victims.

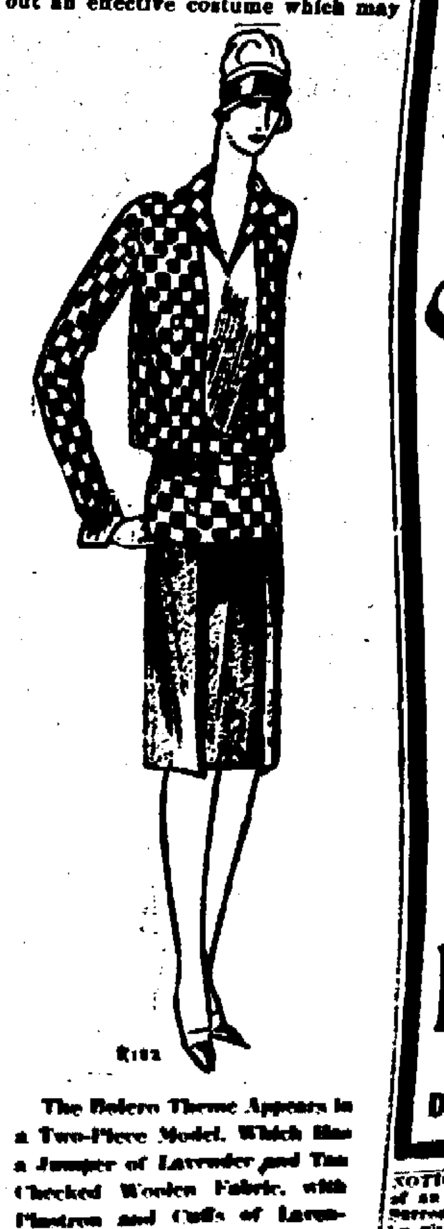
On Fashions

The Cloth Dress is Firmly Established—Navy and Red Are Sponsored—Sleeves Are Long, and Two-Piece Ideas Plentiful for Fall.

The silk dress, be it satin or crepe, has a sturdy rival this fall in light-weight woolens. Starting with kasha and jersey, wool has made a place for itself—not in the home but abroad. It is the travel dress de luxe, the dress in which one motors, and because of this—or perhaps it is the other way about—the shops are filled with stunning materials light as thistledown, warm, and, above all, smart.

These materials have a way of being overlaid by a design which is unobtrusive, but which gives a variation of tone. The entrance of fabrics at a time when warm, rich colorings are the choice makes for coziness as well as elegance, especially when furs are so profusely used as is the present custom.

Given a material that may be tucked or fashioned into self-applied straps or bands, and a judicious number of well-chosen buttons, only a good tailor is needed to turn out an effective costume which may be topped by a velvet coat—lined with cloth, if one is inclined to such extremes. The sleeves must be long. Opinions differ as to their width. For the more or less severe tailleur, they should, of course, be fitted, but severity is not the basic idea of all tailleurs.



The Bolero Theme Appears in a Two-Piece Model, Which Has a Jumper of Lavender and Tan Checked Woolen Fabric, with Plastron and Cuffs of Lavender Crepe de Chine, and a Skirt of Rough Woolen Fabric in Indeterminate Lavender Mixture.

Exclusive establishments having a youthful clientele have been sponsoring navy with bright red this season. "What is new about that?" asks the scoffer. What, indeed? Yet there are times when this old-as-the-hills combination is commonplace, and times when it is stunning. Jumpers that are horizontally striped in red and blue score when worn over pleated navy skirts. One sometimes finds that an opened-down-the-front sweater of navy discloses a brilliant red vestee, and that a red hat and flying kerchief help in establishing the color scheme.

How I Keep My Waves

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My hair is ever-wavy, with never a Marcel. It always has a glow. The reason lies in a hair dress which experts made for me.

I apply it on a brush twice a week. To fluff my hair I comb it backward, and the fluff remains. For a curl, use combs or fingers in the usual way, and the curl will last. It keeps a permanent wave in the same way. Or it keeps hair sleek and smooth for those who want it, and does it without grease.

This remarkable hair dress is now supplied by all toilet counters. It is called Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75 cents.

No girl or woman will go without it when she once sees what it does. It multiplies the beauty of the hair and keeps it in the style one wishes. You will be delighted with it.

How Women

Now keep fresh, charming under trying hygienic conditions

THE uncertainty and insecurity of the old-time "sanitary pad" has been ended. Scientific protection now supplants it.

Wear sheer gowns, keep up with social and business requirements, at all times . . . without handicap.

"KOTEX" is a new and remarkable way . . . five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Absorbs and deodorizes at the same time. Thus ending ALL fear of offending.

You discard it as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it for a few cents at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." Women ask for it without hesitancy.

Try Kotex. Comes 12 in a package. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

TWO SETS OF BROTHERS ON ALLEGHENY ELEVEN.

Meadville, Pa., Oct. 20 (AP).—Colleges have twins and colleges have brothers playing on the same eleven but Allegheny alone boasts two sets of brothers playing varsity football.

Marty Kinannen, captain and guard, has been an able lineman in brother Niles, who recently supplanted Hughes at left end on the first team. Dave Behrherst, one of team's outstanding defensive backs, has brother "Kip" vieing with him for backfield honors in the signal-calling berth. As yet "Kip" has been forced to content himself with a sub role, filling the shoes of Waleski, regular quarterback.

Welcome Regulars Back to Fold

Coaches of Eastern Football Squads Rejoice as Regulars Return to Lineup for Mid-Season Contests.

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Returning regulars lightened the hearts of coaches as preparations for mid-season games gathered momentum today in the eastern football sector.

Jake Slagle, triple threat of the Princeton backfield, is back in the Tiger fold, ready to flash his open field brilliance against Lehigh Saturday. Injuries that required treatment by physicians at his home in Baltimore have mended and the star is ready to shine again in the Bengal backfield, where all possible brilliance is needed to offset the handicap of a faltering line. Captain Johnny Davis, lately of the hospital squad, was back at guard in the dummy scrimmage yesterday, and Ted Williams made his first appearance at quarterback since injuries laid him low weeks ago.

The return of Bill Webster to his line station after four weeks of enforced idleness balanced the Yale forward wall, where a gap appeared due to the leg injury of Ryan, regular tackle. Scrimmage is the diet for the Elis today, who have a shifty Brown Bear waiting to show his claws on Saturday.

The Pennsylvania squad, taking another easy day in preparation for Williams, welcomed Al Wascolonis, smashing back, and Paul Murphy, back into the fold with hurts healed again. Three faces, strange to the Fordham squad since the Boston College game, re-appeared in the lineup as Captain Leary, Delaney and Feester joined in the long scrimmage workout of the plays Andy Krew's Washington and Jefferson outfit must face.

Harvard and Dartmouth swapped workouts against each other's plays to be sure there would be no surprises on Saturday. A team of ineligibles and subs that has been drilling for the past two weeks to perfect the Green flat passes and "hesitation" plays that mystified Harvard last year and almost defeated the Elis a week ago, could make no headway against the Crimson varsity.

All You Expect

To become a Lucky Strike smoker makes one more critical of cigarettes.

Usual standards no longer appeal. For in Lucky Strikes you get the choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and perfectly blended—and something more.

If judged only by comparison of tobaccos, Lucky Strikes would be the best on the market.

But in Luckies you enjoy the results of an added process of toasting.

This gives Luckies their distinct superiority.

In Lucky Strikes you find:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

Then the toasting process is an addition. It adds a unique and distinct improvement to a cigarette that has already been made from the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. It is the reason millions prefer Lucky Strikes.

"It's toasted"

That's Why Luckies Taste So Good

Sport Briefs Of All Sorts

(By The Associated Press.)

Bill Skiff, who worked almost a full schedule of 154 games last season warming up pitchers in the Yankee bull pen when hurlers were wobbling out on the hill, has been released to the Newark Club of the International League. He is expected back in the majors some time next season.

New York University, gaining recognition this season among the leading elevens of the east by reason of a smashing victory over Tulane and an unblemished slate, established a record one season that elevens may equal but never beat. In 1912 the team that sported the violet colors not only did not win a game but failed to score a single point in eight contests. Opponents scored 241.

Garland Braxton, traded to the Washington Senators by the Yankees with Nick Cullop, heavy hitting outfielder, and $4,500 for Dutch Ruether, started only one game on the mound last season and lost that but as a relief pitcher established quite a reputation. Cullop has been a minor league sensation on several occasions but has difficulty gauging curve pitchers.

The quarterback with the clarion voice, so essential under gridiron conditions when signal barkers vied with the spectators in noise-making, has lost his appeal to coaches with the advent of the huddle system where heads are grouped and signals almost whispered.

Dark days have settled over the golden bears of California since the passing of Andy Smith, beloved coach, who died last January from pneumonia contracted while watching the Penn-Cornell game. The ashes of the leader, whose teams were all-powerful, were scattered on the playing field at Berkeley but twice in four games. California has bowed to both St. Mary's and the Oregon Aggies so far this season.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

With the exception of the three old reliables—WGY, WJZ, WEAF—there was no radio reception worth mentioning last night. But the three were so good that nobody but incurable DX hounds cared.

TOD MORGAN EASILY BEAT JOHNNY DUNDEE.

San Francisco, Oct. 20 (AP).—Tod Morgan of Seattle continues to reign supreme in the division of junior-lightweights. For a brief 30 minutes here last night, his authority was questioned but before the battle had progressed far, the challenger, Johnny Dundee, of New York, had been put to rout by a barrage of flying gloves that beat a steady tattoo on the face and body.

Coming out after the fourth round, Morgan drove the veteran New York boxer around the ring, landing seemingly at will both to the mid-section and the face. At the finish, there was no question as Referee Harry Ertle raised the champion's hand.

The victor was tempered with the knowledge that Dundee fought through most of the bout with one hand. His handlers announced that an old break in his right hand had been fractured during the second round.

Dundee's best showing came in the second round when he scored repeatedly with his left hand and jolted Morgan with a right to the jaw that sent the Seattle youth spinning.

(By The Associated Press.)

Chicago—Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis, and Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, fought a draw, 10. Otto Von Porat, Oslo, Norway, knocked out Ben Sullivan, Chicago, 2 rounds.

Des Moines, Ia.—Harry Kahn, Milwaukee, Wis., defeated Roscoe Hall, Iowa, ten rounds. Lefty Louis Mays, Des Moines, outpointed Irish Kennedy, St. Paul. Leo Gentz, Barberton, Ohio, defeated Jimmy O'Malley, San Francisco.

New York—Eddie Bolduc, England, beat San Sanchez, Mexico, six rounds. Lew Kirsch, New York, won from Jose Lombardo, Panama, six rounds.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Ted Goodrich, New Orleans, and Barney Adair, New York, fought a draw, 10 rounds.

San Francisco—Tod Morgan, Seattle, junior lightweight champion, defeated Johnny Dundee, New York, 10 rounds.

SPORT OF RUGBY BOOMS IN POLAND

Game That Was Unknown Till 1920 Now Prospers.

Rugby, which was unknown in Poland until 1920, is proving one of the most highly patronized sports of the country at the present time, reports of the minister of physical education recently released show. At the time the Russians and the Poles staged their little war and things did not go so well for Poland, General Haller of the French army came to the rescue, and with his men came a Rugby ball.

When military affairs had assumed a peaceful aspect, the French soldiers began to play rugby, and a professor in the University of Warsaw was attracted by the game. He watched the French playing it, learned the rules and determined to put it in the university as one of the leading sports. He conferred with the French soldiers and learned the technique of the game from them.

After the soldiers left he staged several exhibition contests in Warsaw; but the public did not take kindly to the game, and the club that he formed, the White Eagles, did not fare well; in fact, the venture lasted only a year, and by 1921 the White Eagle club was unheard of. The professor did not give up hope, however, and in 1924 the White Eagles again were playing rugby.

More members came to the club, and finally enough persons were interested to warrant the staging of a game. The two teams were evenly matched, and the small crowd that saw the contest became highly enthusiastic. The result was that from that time on the sport found a firm foundation and sprang into life. Now it is played in many of the cities of the country, and is more than paying its expenses. Critics in Warsaw are anxious to arrange international matches, and it appears that in a short time the country will take its place among the leading rugby nations of Europe.

Northwestern Now Has Finest Coaching Staff

One of the largest and finest coaching staffs that ever tutored Northwestern university gridiron candidates greeted the Purple prospects when they trotted out upon the practice field for the first time.

Led by Head Coach Glenn F. Thistlewaite, who entered his fifth year with the Wildcats, the staff includes Jack Ryan, former chief coach at the University of Wisconsin; Herbert Steger, brilliant halfback and captain of the Michigan eleven in 1924; Jerome A. (Duke) Dunne, former all-conference lineman from Michigan; Maurice A. Kert, head cage coach, who will again have charge of the freshmen candidates, and Orion Stuteville, L. W. Rusness and Timothy G. Lowry, all new additions to the mentor department this year, who will assist Kent in teaching the frosh grid tricks.

These men, the majority of them familiar with conference football through years of active participation both as coaches and players, will be able to give the Purple gridders expert instruction in the type of play required in big time competition.

How John Sullivan Met Defeat by Jim Corbett

This is the way newspaper accounts gave the twenty-first and last round of the Sullivan-Corbett title fight at New Orleans, September 7, 1892.

Round 21—Sullivan rushed, but Corbett stepped nimbly aside and smashed the big fellow's sore and bleeding nose with both fists, causing the blood to flow in a torrent.

Sullivan was bewildered and began to show signs of early collapse. Corbett, smiling like a schoolboy, hooked a right-hander to the side of the head.

Corbett steadied himself. He sent a hard right to the ear and followed with a terrific left to the jaw and Sullivan sank helpless to the floor of the ring. He was not unconscious, but too exhausted to rise. The round lasted a little over a minute and a half.

So passed Sullivan, last of the old-time fighters.

Yellow Jackets Play Here Sunday

Kingston's Professional Football Team Will Play Its First Home Game Sunday Meeting The Beacon Eleven.

After having dazzled other Hudson Valley fans with their spectacular prowess in handling the pigskin, Kingston's Yellow Jackets will give their home town fans an opportunity to view their wares this Sunday as Beacon comes to Kingston in the local grid team's first home match.

Beacon, West Point Artillery and Poughkeepsie have each been trampled upon by the powerful Kingston grid outfit while the Yellow Jackets have yet to suffer a defeat. With one or two new talented warriors in their band and with several weeks of experience which they didn't have before, the Beacon gridders intend to turn the Yellow Jackets inside out this Sunday. But the Kingstonians have started toward the pennant laurels at a rapid pace and it will take a great deal of football brains and power to waylay them at this stage.

Practice was held Tuesday night and two more workouts are on schedule for Thursday and Friday evenings in order to be A-1 shape for the first home contest.

Peculiar Sacrifice Fly Is Made to the Pitcher

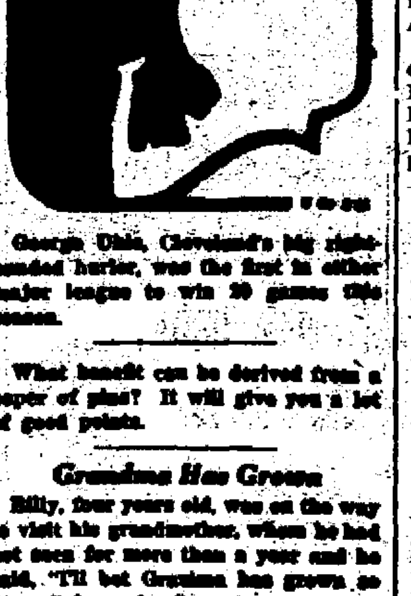
Odd experiences happen in any baseball game both from the players' standpoint and from that of the scorer, and perhaps the most peculiar play this year was in the Idaho-Washington league recently in a game between the Price nine and that of Coeur d'Alene.

Coeur d'Alene had tied the count in the ninth and in the tenth numerous bingles, including Harry Trekell's double, had galloped five counters over the platter. Trekell roosted on the second sack with none down when Sam Webb came to bat.

Webb had received his orders to smack it on the nose, but the best he could do was lift a high fly to Snyder, the pitcher. Denny Walsh rushed in from third to help him. Pace dashed in from short while Leo Walsh backed him from second base. But Snyder didn't need their help and caught the pellet. Trekell dashed for third base, beating Snyder by inches.

The scorer could do nothing but credit Webb with a sacrifice fly to the pitcher, because Trekell was able to advance a base on the blow.

Wins Twenty Games



George Uhle, Cleveland's big right-handed hurler, was the first in either major league to win 20 games this season.

What benefit can be derived from a paper of pins? It will give you a lot of good points.

Grandma Has Grown

Has Strangle He On Auto Rac

Hartz Certain to Win Driving Cha pionship—Frank Lockhart, B liant West Coast Driver, Lo Chance at Salem.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 20.— certain that Harry Hartz, inter tionally known A. A. A. race driv who has had more looks at the pr ised land than Moses ever had, is descend into the valley which f with milk and honey.

Harry, who has been the most co sistent performer in American Au mobile Association racing circles f four years, but who never has wo Three A championship, got what th wrestlers term a strangle hold o the top of the ladder in the series o races at the Salem, N. H., mile an a quarter board track on October 1 He won the big event, a 200-mi race, and took second in two twent five mile events. This is an old sto now to racing enthusiasts, but th official standing of the drivers iss today by the Contest Board, A. A A., gives certainty to what had her tofore been only a guess.

Hartz's point total is now 2,78 and should he fail to place in the re maining race programs at Charlott and Los Angeles, and Lockhart wi both, Hartz would lead by points.

Frank Lockhart, Los Angel motor meteor, who came flaming o of the west in this, his first year big league competition, may still fi ish second in the championship, if h can maintain his 305 point lead ov Peter De Paolo, the 1925 champio driver. It is almost safe to hazar a guess that the finish for this yea will be Hartz, Lockhart and D Paolo, for the first three places.

The year coming to a close h seen no walkaways by first line driv ers—they have had to fight their wa as the marines did at Bellea Woods, inch by inch. Lockhart, wi the impetuousness of youth, ma Harry Hartz extend himself to sta out in front. Frank attacked th job of getting to the top in whirlwi style, forcing Harry to the highe point in his driving career to kee ahead. The Salem race results pus ed Peter Kreiss, young Knoxvill Tenn., hurricane from twelfth t ninth in the standing. Duray, wh drives a sister front wheel drive t Kreiss's, passed up the line fro eighteenth to fifteenth.

The race program just run demo strated one thing particularly—th problems that have made life mise able for the drivers due to the a vent of the 91½ cu. in. racing ca are being mastered. The speed h gradually rising since the first ra run with the new cars on May 31 a Indianapolis. Hartz qualified a 136.3 miles an hour at Salem. Th second sprint race was won at 130.3 and 130 miles per hour is plenty fa In a few more months so well will th boys have their fleet chargers unde the bit that it may be expected th will approach the speed of the 12 cu. in. cars in time.

The two remaining race cards o the season will be a program of sho races at Charlotte, N. C., on Nove ber 11, consisting of two twenty-fi mile races, a fifty and a one hundr fifty; and a two hundred fifty mi race on the Culver City track at Lo Angeles on November 28.

The standing of the first five dri ers in the championship race i Hartz, 2,789; Lockhart, 1,780; D Paolo, 1,475; Hill, 995; Comer, 629 Frank Elliott being tied for fif place with Comer.

An Orphan

It was the day before the race, an inquisitive fan who had been lo ing over a few of the entries ca upon a likely looking little roan be groomed by an old darkey.

"Good horse?" questioned the fan.

"There ain't none bettah, suh," s the darkey.

"Who was he sired by?"

"Well, suh," replied the dark aware that the pedigree of his lit horse was somewhat shady, "nobo knows that. This colt is so fast h run away from home befoah evah h heard his pap's name!"

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—It will cost $1,000 for a box close to Queen Marie at the Metropolitan Opera House next Sunday night. Mrs. Claus Spreckels and Ira Nelson Morris have paid $5,000 for one jointly. A more distant view of royalty, but a better glimpse of Loie Fuller's ballet may be obtained in the orchestra for $25. The performance is represented as for the benefit of a war memorial in Washington sponsored by Mrs. O. Crittenden Calhoun.

New York—Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2nd, has mortgaged her Fifth avenue home for $400,000.

New York—John Whalen gives his entire time without salary to his duties as president of the Bank of Washington Heights, which has deposits of $10,000,000.

London—Arjun Lalshet, a Hindu millionaire, is spending much money trying to breed dogs in Baroda that won't eat meat. He has bought a village and is experimenting by feeding the dogs rice, wheat, milk and butter, barring cats and stopping up rat holes.

New York—Latest quotations on Presidential letters: Woodrow Wilson, $26; Theodore Roosevelt, $27.50; Warren G. Harding, $30. These prices were paid at an auction.

New York—A $30,000 diamond and pearl necklace seems destined to become the property of a Harlem negress shortly. She said she found it in the street and tried to pawn it for $5. The police seized it and have held it for nearly the six months stipulated by regulation, but no claimant has appeared.

Lincoln Framed Noted Addresses While He Walked

Boxes of Papers Disclose That Martyr President Sought Solitude for His Thoughts—Papers Now Safely Stored.

Chicago, Oct. 20 (AP).—Boxes upon boxes of his papers, now safely stored away, bear evidence that Abraham Lincoln sought solitude for his thoughts, as he walked.

To visualize Lincoln scribbling thoughts on envelopes on his daily walks in Washington was the privilege of one of the few men who viewed his letters and papers before the death of Robert T. Lincoln removed them from further perusal for twenty years. They show Lincoln's method, the development of his ideas, the fact that his most famous addresses were re-phrased and re-written sometimes four and five times, until they became finished gems or rhetoric.

Put Ideas on Envelopes.

A scene is reconstructed. It shows Lincoln stopping in his walk to reach in his coat pocket for note paper. He finds none, but finds a number of letters. He takes the envelope from one, tears it open at each end and turns it inside out. There he writes his idea. His walk continues. Perhaps a second envelope would be used, a second idea noted.

Back at his desk, he would take a piece of foolscap paper, trim the envelope down to the size of his notation on it, and paste that clipping at the top of the foolscap. Beneath that clipping the idea is developed. The sheet is marked number one. Under it, a second sheet whereupon the original idea is developed and then a third sheet and perhaps a fourth and fifth, bearing revisions. Some sheets have two revisions interlined.

Changed Inaugural Address.

Hundreds of foolscap notes with such pieces of envelope for headings, are in Lincoln's papers: Indicating his thoroughess, for example, the last two drafts of the final paragraph of his second inaugural address are cited. They show forcefully the working of his mind, the careful development of an idea into a thing of beauty.

"I am loathe to close," the last draft read. "We are not enemies but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic chords of memory, stretching from every battlefield and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone all over the broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature."

As It Read First.

That evidently met with Lincoln's ideas. It was the last revision, one that has a place in the various volumes of the world's best prose. Before this revision he had written it as follows:

"I close. We are not, we must not be, aliens or enemies, but fellow countrymen. Although passion has strained our bonds of affection too hardly, they must not, I am sure they will not be broken. The mystic chords which proceeding from so many battle-fields and so many patriot graves pass through all the hearts and all the hearths in this broad continent of ours will yet again harmonize in their ancient music when breathed upon by the guardian angel of the nation."

Why Do We Oppose Sunday Moving Pictures?

Not because we want a Blue Sunday
Not because we frown on amusements
Not because we do not see the need of recreation

BUT

Because the sacredness of our Holy Day is endangered
Because no Sunday means no God
Because the movement proceeds from organized greed
Because it is an attempt to commercialize the day
Because six days a week with ten hours of movies each day belies the claim of need
Because Sunday movies are subversive of the best moral and spiritual interests of the youth

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, Oct. 20.—The Knor building on the corner of Jane and Partition streets is receiving a new coat of paint. William F. Kelly has the contract.

The Rev. E. L. Howe assumed charge of the Trinity Church and preached his first sermon Sunday. Mr. Howe gave a very interesting sermon and was welcomed to this parish by a large congregation.

The Saugerties school faculty banquet and reception will be held in Rossland Lodge on Main street on Thursday evening, October 28.

William Doyle of Underwood street, who has been sick for some time, is able to walk about again.

A solo was rendered by John C. Stone, a member of the Chautauqua concert, which played in this village last Saturday evening, in the Lutheran Church Sunday night.

The Schryver Motor Co. has sold a Willys-Knight sedan to Charles Deyo of Main street.

The Queen Ulster Rebekah Lodge installed their officers on Tuesday evening and a large number of out of town visitors were present. A banquet followed the meeting.

Deputy Sheriff R. R. Whitaker of Main street is in Kingston this week attending the term of Supreme court as court officer.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Durham of Ulster avenue celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Saturday evening with all their children present. The couple were tendered a reception in their honor and numerous gifts were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Williams have returned to their newly furnished apartment on Market street after spending their honeymoon in Maine.

Clyde Van Steenburg spent the past week end with his parents on Partition street.

Miss Katherine Bruckner, who was the week-end guest of Dr. and Mrs. R. F. Fielding on Market street, has returned to her home in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Snyder and son, Robert, also Mrs. Dorothy Overbagh and son, John, were in New Haven, Conn., the past Saturday.

Mrs. George Adie of Brooklyn is visiting her mother, Mrs. Williams, of Partition street.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcon Myer of Brooklyn are in town visiting relatives.

John C. Benedict, superintendent of schools, spent the past week end at his home in Pan Yan, N. Y.

Mrs. S. L. Austin and son, who were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Lowther of Washington avenue, have returned to their home in Mt. Vernon.

Miss Katherine Mattice of Brooklyn was in town over the week end attending the funeral of her nephew, William Jacobs.

The local schools will remain closed Thursday and Friday so as to give the teachers a chance to attend the State Teachers' Association meeting in Albany.

David Schoentag, Jr., of Ulster avenue has entered the Raymond Riordan School in Highland, N. Y.

Miss Virginia Clark, of the local school faculty, spent the week end at her home in Penn Yan, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sinnott of Partition street are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a son.

The bus of Garrison, which runs to Palenville, and the Dodge coupe of School Principal Grant Morse came together on Main street on Monday afternoon. Both cars were damaged but the coupe suffered most.

An old fashioned dance will be held in the Centerville Firemen's Hall next Saturday evening. Everyone is invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carnright, who have been spending the past few days with friends in Schenectady, have returned to their home on John street.

The semi-centennial meeting of the Hudson River Association of Congregational Churches is being held in this village today and tomorrow in the Congregational Church on Main street. Addresses will be given by prominent speakers and a busy time is expected. The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies are also holding their meetings in the Reformed Church and matters of importance will come before both bodies.

Albert Kriese, who has been spending some time in Buffalo, has returned to his home on Ulster avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lasher of Newburgh are in town visiting his mother.

H. E. Austin of Springfield, Mass., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Bradley of West Bridge street.

On October 25, the stock of the Suderly Confectionery, also auto trucks, will be sold under a judgment obtained against them. Sheriff H. S. Wells will have charge.

Card Party and Dance.

A card party and dance under the auspices of the ladies of St. Mary's parish will be held in the school hall on Wednesday evening, October 27. Games of bridge, pinochle, five hundred and euchre will start promptly at 8 o'clock and will continue until 9:30, when music for dancing will start. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served. The public is invited.

"The Jew As a Traveler."

The subject of the Rev. Morris M. Rose's sermon at Temple Emanuel on Friday evening will be "The Jew as a Traveler."

Abe Mitchell Watches Divots More Than Bal

Replacing divots is just as importa as keeping your head down when yo make a shot. Spotty fairways ru against a club and it is surprising ho much damage an enthusiastic div digger can do. Caddies should be in structed to replace all damaged tur but the duty of the member or pla should never stop with the assumptio that the bag toter is responsible fo the condition of the divot—after th shot is played.

Abe Mitchell, probably one of th greatest players the world has ever known, has adopted a little system (o his own that enables him to keep h head down—and also replaces h turf. Abe keeps his eye glued o where the ball was—and never lo up until after he steps forward an presses the earth together with hi right foot.

Rumanian Queen Decides She Won't Visit California

Difficulty With Southern Pacific Railroad Over Transportation of Her Special Train Causes Sudden Changes—Original Object of Trip Neglected.

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP).—Queen Marie of Rumania prefaced her departure today from the nation's Capital with the announcement of two last minute changes in plans for her American tour after the conclusion tonight of its supervision by the state department.

The gorgeous, diademed queen who graced last night the first royal banquet ever held in the White House, let it be known through a spokesman that she will not visit California, as planned originally, and that press representatives will be barred from her train for the rest of her trip because of her desire for privacy.

Colonel John H. Carroll, general counsel of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, in charge of her itinerary, said that difficulties with the Southern Pacific railroad, which refused to grant a rate of $1 for transporting her special train over its lines, were responsible for the elimination of San Franciso, Los Angeles and other California cities from her route.

Regarding the other changes, the state department's arrangements for her transportation to Washington and her return today to New York included the presence of three press association representatives on her train, as has been the custom with the official trips of other eminent visitors or American statesmen.

Original Object Neglected.

But, after 36 hours in the United States, during which she has been heralded, photographed and interviewed as few visitors to this country have been "the most beautiful queen in Europe" said that the "original object" of her trip to this country has been neglected. She desires privacy, and is here, she insisted, solely as the representative of her government in the dedication of the Rumaniaan room of the Maryhill Fine Arts Museum at Maryhill, Washington, for which she has brought over many treasures from her country.

At White House Dinner.

Her last appearance in Washington, the culmination of the diplomatic and official functions of yesterday, was at the White House dinner given in her honor by President and Mrs. Coolidge. Here she appeared before members of the cabinet, other distinguished government officials and members of the diplomatic corps to the number of 50, in all the glittering panoply of her rank.

A regal diadem circled the shingled auburn locks of this modern monarch. Inherited from her royal Russian mother, the Grand Duchess Marie, daughter of Czar Alexander, the crown dripped great pear-shaped pearls which harmonized with the three ropes of pearls that, with her decorations, completed her ornaments.

The decoration over her heart was the blue ribbon and star of the Order of Carol, Rumania's highest order.

Wears Glittering Gown.

Her white gown glittered with sequins. Its decolletage was round in the front, and ended in a low V, from which hung a train in the back. A gold and white brocade cloak, sable-trimmed, covered her gown on her trips to and from the White House.

The Princess Ileana wore a simple, well cut gown of blue crepe de chine, no jewels, but a smaller ribbon and star of the Order of Carol.

The White House dinner was a brilliant close of the queen's day in the Capital. Sight-seeing which included visits to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery, Washington's home at Mount Vernon and the Lincoln memorial, terminated by four o'clock, when the official calls between White House and legation were exchanged.

English Tribunal Holds Unpaid Wager Not Debt

A legal decision of interest to bookmakers and backers of horses on the turf in England was given in General Sessions (London) recently, when the question was raised whether criminal proceedings could be taken against a man alleged to have incurred a betting credit by false pretenses. The verdict was "not guilty."

Judge Cecil Whiteley of Special Sessions in his ruling said: "Betting transactions are not debt or liabilities within the meaning of the debtors' act, and there is no evidence on which the jury can find that the defendant incurred a debt or liability or obtained credit within the meaning of the section."

Railroad Sued By Doctor for $50,000 Damage

Dr. Max A. Zipser Asks $50,000 Damages for Injuries Claimed to Have Been Sustained When His Auto Was Struck by U. & D. Train at Phoenicia.

A $50,000 action to recover damages for personal injuries was taken up in the Supreme court Tuesday afternoon. The action is brought by Dr. Max A. Zipser of New York city against the Ulster & Delaware Railroad Company and William Guttenberg, a friend of Dr. Zipser, whose automobile was struck at the Phoenicia crossing of the Ulster & Delaware railroad on October 12, 1924, injuring Dr. Zipser and the other occupants of the car.

At the time of the accident Dr. Zipser and William and Michael Guttenberg were returning from Hunter to New York city. As the car was driven by William Guttenberg through the village of Phoenicia a train, made up at Phoenicia, started up the Stony Clove branch of the railroad. There were several cars behind the engine and in front of the engine was a single box car. The Studebaker car of Guttenberg, which plaintiff claims was driven some 15 miles an hour, had just arrived at the crossing when the box car struck the automobile, turning it up the tracks and parallel to the train. The car was dragged some distance before the train was stopped.

Doctor Blames Railroad.

Plaintiff claims the accident was due to the negligence of the railroad, that the automobile was proceeding at a reasonable speed and that proper care was being exercised by the driver, but that there was not sufficient warning displayed at the crossing. Although the driver of the car is named as a defendant in the action, plaintiff by his testimony on the witness stand places the blame for the accident on the operators of the railroad.

Unacquainted With Crossing.

H. H. Flemming, who appears for the railroad, on cross-examination inquired if Dr. Zipser had ever been over the road before and knew of the crossing. Dr. Zipser said it was dark the night before when they passed through Phoenicia and that except for several trips by train to Hunter he had never been over the route before. He said he did not notice the warning disc of a grade crossing and stated that if the sign was there it was obstructed by parked cars at the roadside. He did not see a large grade crossing sign to look out for the cars. He also said that he was doing nothing except to look at the scenery but did not hear a warning bell or whistle from the train. Seated in the rear seat of the closed car, he saw the box car come into view. It "looked like a house" and the automobile was struck instantly. He did not see a trainman on the top of the box car.

Claims Accident Impaired Ability.

Dr. Zipser is 57 years old and resides in New York city, with an office on Lexington avenue. Prior to the accident in which his head, arm, chest and body were injured, he testified he was a practicing physician and surgeon, not attached to any hospital but doing minor operating in his office. For several years prior to the accident, he said, he had not done any major operating. His earning ability before the accident netted him from $8,000 to $9,000 a year and since the accident his earnings have been reduced to $5,000 or $6,000 as he is unable to do any operating.

No Treatment Until Next Day.

Dr. Zipser said that after the accident one of the occupants of the car had a fractured skull and although he himself was injured he did not seek attention of Dr. Wolf, who was at the scene of the accident, except to have his arm bound up. At the Kingston City Hospital he received no attention and left for New York city the same night. Next day he called in his physician, Dr. Metz, and for ten days he remained in bed. His chest pained him and his arm was injured. He was very nervous and claims to still suffer from nervousness. His hand is also affected and prevents him from operating. Neuritis in the arm and hand pains him and at times he is unable to work. He also claims that he cannot work steadily at his practice as a physician and is compelled to go away for a rest every month. Before the accident he never went away except for his annual vacation.

His Nervous Condition.

Dr. Bloch, Brooklyn specialist in mental and nervous disorders, testified that the nervous condition of Dr. Zipser was a permanent condition and might progress.

C. Fuller Williams and Frank W. Brooks appear for the plaintiff.

Railroad Denies Negligence.

H. H. Flemming, attorney for the railroad, contends that the accident was not due to negligence of the railroad. That the train had been made up at the junction and was still in the yard limits, progressing at less than 10 miles an hour, and that a trainman had been stationed on the front box car which had been placed ahead of the engine. When the car was seen approaching, the trainman on the box car signaled the engineer and the air was applied and the train brought to a stop in a short distance. He also contends that the trainman on the box car had a better view of approaching traffic than would the engineer have had from the cab had the box car not been ahead of the engine.

The railroad contends that the driver of the car did not take proper precautions in crossing the grade crossing and in observing the railroad warnings.

Defense Opens.

The case was continued this morning. Plaintiff's testimony was concluded shortly after court opened and William Guttenberg was the first witness called for the defense.

Testimony in regard to the crossing, maps of the crossing and photographs showing the various distances which it was possible to see down the track from points in the roadway occupied a greater portion of the morning session.

The engineer of the train was sworn and told of blowing the whistle at the whistling post, a distance fro mthe crossing, and of his first notification of an accident by the fireman. His attention was attracted by the fireman who told him to stop. He applied the air and brought the train to a stop a short distance across the roadway. He felt an impact and did not know when the car and train crashed. There was a trainman on the top of the box car ahead of the locomotive but he gave no signal to the engineer.

Chandler Noticed Elbow Swelling.

Dr. Chandler was called and testified that he had treated Dr. Zipser at the Kingston City Hospital following the accident. He found a swelling of the nerve at the elbow. He did not recall any other injury or of Dr. Zipser complaining of any other injury.

As evidence of the patience and great restraint of the people, some of the "keep-cool" poets still live.

A visit to the free bathing beaches should convince any one that the end of the bathing suit is not in sight.

QUEEN MARIE LIKES AMERICAN CIGARETTES

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—The diamond crown worn upon shingled, permanently waved locks is not the only sign of modern feminity displayed by Marie, queen of Rumania, for she smokes American cigarettes and likes them, and, furthermore, sees no harm in the use of a lip-stick to enhance her royal good looks.

So declared her spokeswoman, the lady in waiting, Madame Simone Lahovary, in answering questions today. Madame Lahovary described a queen who is modern and human, feminine as well as regal.

"Yes, the queen smokes a few cigarettes daily, although she is by no means an inveterate smoker," she said. "She does not permit the Princess Ileana to smoke."

"We have brought some Rumanian cigarettes with us, but the queen has also smoked some American brands, and likes them very much," she added.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Alternate period of weakness and strength characterized today's stock market as opposing speculative forces struggled for control. Honors were about even during the greater part of the session, the uncovering of new weak spots among the specialties by bear traders being offset by the appearance of stronger buying power for some of the high grade industrials and specialties.

Money continued in plentiful supply at relatively low rates. Good quarterly earnings statements were made public by Republic Steel, Midland Steel Products, and a few other companies.

Weakness of some of the specialties lent color to reports that pools which had been operating in those issues were forced to liquidate their holdings.

An attempt was made to rally the market in the early afternoon by bidding up U. S. Steel common, General Motors, Mack Trucks and some of the other popular industrials which had borne the brunt of recent selling pressure. U. S. Steel was bid up about 2 points above the morning low, Woolworth was lifted 3 points and Montgomery Ward 4. Selling pressure was renewed against several of the public utility stocks, particularly American and foreign power and American Power and Light.

Blue Nose Wins Championship.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 20 (AP).—The Blue Nose today won the championship of the Canadian fishing fleet, by defeating the Haligonian in the fourth race of the series. Two previous races were declared void because the schooners were unable to finish within the time limit. Blue Nose led in both of these races.

Uncle Sam may not have won the war, but it is evident who is paying for it.

Corning Resigns From Water Board

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—Edwin Corning, chairman of the Democratic state committee and the party's candidate for lieutenant governor, today resigned the chairmanship of the Albany board of water supply. His resignation followed a demand made last night by Dr. Arthur G. Sautter, Republican candidate for mayor, that Mr. Corning relinquish his office because he was not a resident of the city.

At the time the board of water supply was created, it was understood that Mr. Corning would establish a technical residence in this city, but he registered as a voter in the adjoining township of Bethlehem, where he owns a large estate.

Society Notes

John Bouton and Dorothy Ellsworth were married on Saturday evening, October 16, at the parsonage of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church by the Rev. E. G. Reith, pastor of the church. They were attended by Arthur Ellsworth and Alice Osterhoudt.

Little Gardens Club.

The annual meeting of The Little Gardens Club will be held on Friday afternoon of this week at the home of Mrs. Frank Brink, Lake Katrine. At this meeting officers for the coming year will be elected and dues will be received.

Schubert Choral Club.

The annual meeting of the Schubert Choral Club of the Y. W. C. A. will be held at the Y. W. building, 14 Henry street, on Friday evening of this week. Officers will be chosen and the full plans for the winter completed. This year the Schubert Club expect to give one concert in Kingston and one in Saugerties when they will again feature Princess Te Ata, the Indian Princess. At the Friday night meeting dues for the year will be payable.

Cowdrey-Sheeley.

Edwin C. Cowdrey of No. 45 Janet street and Miss Margaret Marie Sheeley of No. 409 Washington avenue were united in marriage on Saturday afternoon at St. Joseph's Church. The bride was gowned in pink georgette and carried a bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by Miss Helen Caddy, who was gowned in blue with hat to match. Joseph McAuliffe was best man. After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Cowdrey will reside on South Manor avenue. The groom is employed by the Newcombe Oil Corporation and both he and his bride have the well wishes of a host of friends.

Lowell Club.

On Tuesday afternoon the Lowell Club met for the first time this season at the home of the club president, Mrs. Van Wagenen. The club is making a study of Spain this year. Notice was given of the open meeting of The Federation of Women's Clubs to be held on Saturday afternoon of this week at the chapel of The First Reformed Church at 2:30 o'clock, the Monday Club entertaining and presenting as the speaker for the afternoon the Rev. Dr. Putnam Cady, whose subject will be "The Enjoyment of the Beautiful." The roll call consisted of items of interest and a very informing Map Talk was given by Mrs. Adams. The afternoon closed with a social hour and the serving of delicious refreshments.

Fowler-Chidgey.

Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Methodist Church in Middlehope the wedding of Miss Grace Chidgey and Fred Stanley Fowler of Marlborough took place. Miss Chidgey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chidgey of Middlehope. She has been a stenographer for some time in the office of Peter Cantline in Newburgh. Mr. Fowler is the son of Mrs. Emma Wygant and is one of the most popular of the younger set in Marlborough. For several years he has been assistant manager of the local Rickborn stores and through business and social relations he has acquired many friends. The wedding ceremony at Middlehope was performed by the Rev. William Colyer of Peekskill, formerly a pastor of the Marlborough Methodist Church. The maid of honor was Miss Gertrude Chidgey, sister of the bride. The groom's attendant was Irving R. Scott of Marlborough. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The bride and groom left for a honeymoon journey by motor. After their return they will make their home on Orange street, Marlborough.

MISS GOLDMAN ANXIOUS TO RETURN TO STATES

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—Hopefully awaiting government approval to visit this city, the home of her relatives, Emma Goldman, anarchist, who was deported to Russia seven years ago, now is in Montreal, she said in a letter to her sister, Mrs. Lena Commins, of Rochester. With her is her husband, James Colton, a British coal miner.

Although Miss Goldman is anxious to return to the states, there will be no clandestine attempt to cross the border, her relatives declared.

Hurricane Hits Havana, Reported Sweeping North

Communication With Havana, Cuba, Cut Off Due to Storm—150 Homes Reported Demolished—Gale Headed North.

Havana, Cuba, Oct. 20 (AP).—A heavy storm struck Havana today, flooding streets, stopping transportation and putting the power systems out of commission. The city was cut off from communication with the interior.

Communication Cut Off.

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—The Commercial Cable Company announced at 11:30 o'clock today that communication with Havana, Cuba, had been cut off by a storm of cyclonic proportions which struck that city.

A message received from the Havana office of the company before communications were broken said that business had been virtually suspended in the city as a result of the storm.

The message said the streets were impassable because of floods caused by heavy rains, that telephone lines were down, offices flooded and lights cut off.

150 Homes Demolished.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 20 (AP).—More than 150 homes were demolished in the Vibora and Jesus Del Monte residential sections of Havana today by the hurricane which swept through the western part of Cuba, according to the local Cuban consulate.

The Viboroa and Jesus Del Monte section of Havana are the thickly populated, older parts of the city once the sites of many of the finest homes in the ancient Capital of Cuba. The American embassy is in the Jesus Del Mone section and is a large strongly constructed residence.

Headed Toward Florida.

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 20 (AP).—The West Indian hurricane apparently is headed toward the west coast of Florida, Walter J. Bennett, government meteoroligst, said at 10:30 a. m. today.

Mr. Bennett ordered storm warnings displayed along the coast from Tarpon Springs to Everglades. He said "a very severe storm is headed this way and it might be necessary to order hurricane warnings before midnight tonight." He urged shipping and residents along the west coast to take every precaution for safeguarding life and property.

Message from Havana.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 20 (AP).—The Western Union received the following message from Havana today: 9:30 a. m. Belen College advises hurricane of great intensity central south and near Havana moving north. Vortex, very near Havana, barometer is falling rapidly. The greatest wind velocity yet registered is 98 miles an hour."

Report from Key West.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 20 (AP).—A steadily increasing wind and a falling barometer were registered at Key West at 11 o'clock, the Miami Daily News was advised by telephone.

The wind was reported at 35 miles an hour, while the barometer had fallen several degrees to 29.61.

Extra precautions were taken at the government base there to protect shipping.

East Can Teach West Proper Use of Time

Time, the most precious thing in the western world, and particularly in America, is, in the Orient, given its proper value in relation to living. In countries like China that have endured for centuries time is not measured off in ruthless blocks, so many years of irresponsible childhood, so many years of frantic work in a great furnace of competition, pitifully few years in which to prepare for the dread specter of old age and then, oblivion. Time in the Far East is a motionless procession of days gliding soundlessly one into the other, all of them precious, but none of them to be regarded as one's last chance.

A man works. He does his best. His business is never too pressing for him to welcome the stranger. And when he lunches or dines he does just that, making a pleasurable accomplishment out of a necessary function instead of regarding the necessity and satisfying it in a 15-minute session of gulps.—From Japan.

Queen May Pass Through Kingston

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP).—The latest version of Queen Marie's itinerary, revised to eliminate all California points, substitutes for the Golden Gate swing a trip from Spokane through Glacier National Park and Billings, Mont., to Denver and sets forward by eight days her arrival at all points to be visited on her way back across the continent.

It also adds short stops to be made October 25 at West Point, Albany and Syracuse. The Canadian tour remains unchanged except that the Queen expects on November 5 or 6 to visit Victoria, British Columbia, as well as Vancouver.

Changes of a few hours in train schedules have been made during the first days of the trip, which begins from New York October 25. The exact time of the stop at West Point is yet to be determined, but the Queen plans to reach Albany at noon. She is to leave ten minutes later for Syracuse, arriving at 3:10 p. m. After another ten minute stop she proceeds to Buffalo, arriving at 6:20 p. m.

Events Around The Empire State

(By The Associated Press.)

Original meanings of some of the Indian names common in New York state today are given by Judge William N. Gemmill of Chicago in a recent book entitled "Romantic America". Manhattan, says Judge Gemmill, has been interpreted by some authorities as meaning "The Place where we all got drunk." Chautauqua, to the Indian, meant "A good place to die"; Niagara was the native word for "neck"; while Iroquois stood for the peaceful suggestion "Let us two smoke together." Sing Sing was "A place of stones."

Discussing Chief Tammany of the Delaware, who was one of the signers of the first treaty between William Penn and the Indians, Judge Gemmill recalls that the man for whom the famous New York society was named was revered by the white settlers.

"So great was Tammany honored in the days of the Revolution," writes the author, "that in some sections of the country he was worshipped as a saint, while in others the anniversary of his birth was celebrated as a holiday. One of the largest parishes in New Orleans is called Saint Tammany Parish.

Osteopaths of New York state and the Province of Ontario will meet in joint convention at Niagara Falls, N. Y., on October 22 and 23. Several prominent members of the profession will speak.

Oscar F. Maynard of Wilmington, 82, drove the mail stage between that Adirondack village and Ausable Forks from June 1 to September 30 without missing a trip. He's the oldest stage driver in the mountains.

Histrionic ability may or may not be of value in the college class room, but members of the Dramatic Club at the University of Rochester led all groups in scholarship last year, says a report issued by the University. The Thespians had an average standing of 77.66 per cent. Y. M. C. A. workers were a close second with 77.63 per cent.

The State Department of Education has established a special crippled children's bureau which will organize and supervise a state-wide program for the education, care and welfare of youngsters in this group. Several field agents are to be appointed to assist the bureau chief, Joseph J. Endres, in working with crippled children, local authorities, judges of children's courts, boards of supervisors and other agencies interested in the problem.

Lesson in Spelling

Ralph Waldo Emerson got a lesson in spelling-as-she-is-spoke from R. E. Richardson of the Electric Bond and Share company, a globe-trotter, who has laid up a vast store of varied information and philosophy.

Young Richardson, when a little lad, attended school at Concord, Mass. Emerson was then head of the school board. The members appeared at school at certain intervals and put the pupils through more or less of an oral examination.

The sage, pointing to Richardson, asked: "How do you spell horse?"

"H-o-s-s," came the instantaneous reply.

Even the grave Emerson had to smile.—Forbes Magazine (New York).

Strict Dietetic Rules

Followers of the Buddhist religion give attention to a strict regulation in their eating and drinking habits. Intoxicating beverages are expressly forbidden and the eating of meat is permissable only under the following restrictions: One must have killed the animal himself, he must not have ordered any one to kill it, it must not have been killed by any one with the intention of supplying it to him, and he must not suspect that the animal has been killed. However, meat-eaters among the Buddhists of Ceylon, Burma, and Siam get around these laws.

He Understood

A young man fell in love with a girl who did not return his affection. After he had proposed to her several times she lost her temper and replied:

"Look here, I ain't going to marry you—never. I wouldn't marry you, not if you was the last man on earth, and I don't want nothing to do with you. Is that plain English?"

"It is plain enough," replied the unabashed suitor, "but it isn't English, you know."

POULTRY

TURKEYS REQUIRE PLENTY OF RANGE

Once upon a time every farm family had its flock of turkeys, which supplied plenty of birds for the home table and some for the tables of those who lived in the towns. Turkey raising in recent years, however, has decreased, one of the main reasons for this decline being that as the population of the country increased farming became more intensive and the area suitable for turkey raising was reduced. Turkeys require plenty of range in order to thrive.

Many farmers, however, still consider turkeys a profitable side line on the farm, and about the first of October begin to consider how to put more flesh on their turkey flock.

During the summer and early fall turkeys can find an abundance of feed on the average farm. Grasshoppers and other insects, weed and grass seeds, green vegetation, berries and grain picked up in the fields all go to make up the turkey's daily ration. When this natural feed is plentiful, very little need be added until fattening time, except for the purpose of bringing the turkeys every night to roost and to keep them from straying from home. For this purpose one feed of grain every night just before roosting time is sufficient.

In fattening turkeys for the market an excellent plan is to begin about October 1 to feed night and morning, feeding only so much at a time that the birds go away a little hungry, and gradually increasing the quantity until they are given all they will clean up three times a day during the week before marketing. By the latter feeding is meant that they are fed until they leave the feed and walk away. Some turkey raisers feed wheat and oats during the first part of the fattening season, gradually changing to corn as the weather becomes cooler. The majority, however, begin feeding heavily on corn about November 1; and, since turkeys are not accustomed to such heavy feeding, scours often result, especially if new corn is used. New corn can be fed safely if the turkeys are gradually accustomed to it by feeding lightly at first and more heavily afterward.

Confining turkeys during the fattening season to prevent their using so much energy in ranging has been tried to some extent, but with very little success.

Provide Good Mash Feed to Increase Egg Laying

The average hen would lay 20 eggs more per year if she was supplied with a good dry mash all year round, according to the poultrymen. Most of the eggs would be laid during the period of the year eggs are highest in price and the income from them would more than repay the cost of the extra feed consumed.

Many farm flocks are permitted to scavenger for their feed at this time of year. Their ability along this line is not nearly as great as is often thought. If all hens were provided with a good mash throughout the year they would molt later in the year and the new feathers would develop rapidly. The rest period would therefore be reduced considerably. Dry mash given in the summer months is a good insurance of higher egg production during the early winter months.

Poultry Hints

Sell the roosters as soon as the hatching season is over.

• • •

If you are interested in eggs alone, there is no better variety than the S. C. White Leghorn.

• • •

Stable floors need to be stable. Make them of concrete and they'll outlast generations of cows.

• • •

Six ducks would be a little too many for one drake, although one drake could go with four or five.

• • •

The ration that will make the pullets lay the most eggs is not necessarily the most economical ration.

• • •

A coat of whitewash now and then is bad for the lice but good for the hen.

• • •

The man who believes in signs says that the hen that blunts her nails scratching is the grandmother of the 200-egg hen.

• • •

If you are interested in both eggs and market poultry it will be more satisfactory to get some of the general-purpose varieties like the Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds or Orpingtons.

• • •

The surplus cockerels should go to market as fast as they reach marketable size.

• • •

It pays to keep the different size chicks separate. The larger ones will hog the feed, and delay the development of the smaller ones.

• • •

In selecting the pullets you are going to keep, do not make the mistake of choosing simply the ones that are largest. Size is an important consideration, but it is not the only thing by any means.

Sees Recreation For Workers

Atlantic City, Oct. 20 (AP).—Light opera, lectures and music, rather than baseball or tennis, are the suitable recreations for workers in modern industry, declared James H. Maurer, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, in an address today before the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

"The popularly accepted idea of recreation is athletic sports—running, jumping, swimming, golf, lawn tennis, and baseball," he said. "All these sports are without doubt very good for those who need that kind of recreation, but few workers engaged in modern industry need them.

Urges Books, Music, Opera.

"Their work gives laboring men all the physical exertion necessary. What they need is recreation of a different kind, such as music, lectures, good books, light opera, educational dramatic productions, adult education in a class room equipped with restful chairs and with an atmosphere of democracy.

"The coal miner or steel worker can well afford to sit on the grandstand and watch the bank clerks play baseball. The bank clerk can well afford to play golf on a hot summer day while the coal miner sits under a shady tree reading a good book or listening to a band concert. Both will be getting the physical and mental recreation needed, and both will be healthier, happier and better equipped to face the problems of life."

To avoid industrial stagnation and unemployment, workers are demanding increased wages and decreased hours of labor. This, he said, means additional hours of leisure which should by all means be turned to good account.

Religion in America is superficial because it must make its appeal to people who are in a hurry, said Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver in another address.

"The Kingdom of God comes without haste," said Dr. Silver. "The heart of the religious mood is meditation, the hushed and silent contemplation of life's profundities. But what American ever meditates? We need more time to get acquainted with ourselves. We should develop a new science—the Science of Leisure.

"We have not enough amateurs in our society—men who, out of sheer love of life, set about to utilize their leisure time purposefully and creatively. Our industrialized civilization demands specialization, which tends to narrow man's mental and spiritual life. Most of us have only one world in which to live—the world of our vocations. For the purpose of earning a living—that is admirable. For the purpose of earning life—it is fatal."

Fell from Truck, Fractured Skull

Edwin Curlin, ten years old, of No. 32 Meadow street is in the Kingston Hospital with a fractured skull sustained at noon Tuesday when he either fell or jumped from the rear of Studt's ice truck on Broadway at Union street. Like other children the little boy, not realizing the danger, had evidently "hooked on" to the rear of a truck to obtain a piece of ice. He was rushed to the hospital where it was found that the skull was fractured at the base. His condition is very serious.
